British "Invasion" of American Market

SELLING DIRECT

The biggest campaign on behalf of British film in America which has yet been undertaken is announced by the Gaumont-British Film Corporation.

The Corporation has decided to initiate immediately the most spectacular enterprise undertaken by any British film company since talking pictures began by creating a machine for the distribution of British talking pictures throughout the United States.

For this purpose Mr. Jeffrey Bernard, general manager of the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation, is sailing for New York to-day.

This enterprise means that British talking pictures will be sold direct to American cinemas in exactly the same way as American talking pictures are sold by their producers to British cinemas.

Mr. Jeffrey Bernard will have to create at least 15 distribution centres in America and will have to rent approximately 30 key theatres in big cities, beginning with New York.

The first five films he will offer will be "Jew Suss," "Chu Chin Chow," "Little Friend," "Man of Aran," and "The Iron Duke."

The preliminary work for the creation of this machine for the distribution of British films in America will cost £200,000.

In announcing the details of this enterprise Mr. Charles M. Woolf, joint managing director of the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation, stated:—

"We are going to boost British films from one coast of America to the other.

"The difficulty is, of course, the language, but we got used to theirs, and they must get used to ours. We shall teach them how to speak English, just as they have taught us to speak American."

"As a beginning, we have signed George Arliss on a contract for two more films than he had originally agreed to make in Britain. Next year he comes back to this country to star in two British productions.

"We are going all out for the best artists and directors, and we are prepared to pay American salaries to get them. Most probably we shall have to pay more to compete with Hollywood.

"Whether Americans will like such essentially English artists as Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls, or Cicely Courtneidge and Jack Hulbert, is difficult to predict... but we are out to make them.

"We shall adhere strictly to the British character, and make no American concessions."

TWO AMBITIOUS PICTURES.

Production has just begun at the British and Dominion studios at Boreham Wood on two of the biggest pictures in this year's schedule. These are "Brewster's Millions," starring Jack Buchanan, and the screen adaptation of Savoir's "The Milky Way," which is so far untitled.

"Brewster's Millions," which has had the most extensive preparations of any Buchanan subject yet made, has a cast which, in addition to the star, includes Lili Damita. There will be dance sequences in which a chorus of 150 girls will take part.

A unit has been making exterior shots in Paris for "The Milky Way" with Sir Cedric Hardwicke. The Continental star, Marie Glory, has had a busy time in making preparations for her British talking debut. On one day she was acting on the Berlin stage, on the next she had flown to London to have

LETTUCE FOR BEAUTY

Everyone knows, or should know, that lettuce is rich in iron and is, therefore, valuable for the blood. If you eat plenty of lettuce you will improve and cleanse your blood, and consequently clear your skin and complexion.

But lettuce can be used externally, as well as internally, as a beauty aid. Lettuce is splendid for removing sunburn, and the juice of the lettuce leaf is said to have healing properties. Pour a quart of boiling water over half a peck of full-grown outside lettuce leaves. After about ten minutes draw off the water and chop the leaves finely. Put them into a soft, clean cloth and wring out all the juice that can be extracted from them into a porcelain-lined pan and boil it for four minutes. There should be about four table-spoonfuls of green liquor. Then take half an ounce each of white wax and spermaceti and four ounces of oil of almonds. Melt them together in a jar placed in a saucepan of hot water. Stir the mixture occasionally, and when quite smooth add the lettuce juice and mix thoroughly. Pour it into small porcelain jars with screw tops, and use it when required as a lotion for removing sunburn.

dress fittings for the film, and on the day following she was with the film unit in Paris, again travelling by air.

CICELY COURTNEIDGE

Production has just been started on Cicely Courtneidge's new comedy, "Schooldays," under the direction of Albert de Courville.

Principal parts in this picture are to be played by William Gargan, Max Miller, Mary Lawson, Charles Mortimer, Judy Kelly, Peggy Simpson, Peggy Blyth, Gillian Maude, Alma Taylor, and Cicely Oates. Madlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the famous tennis star, will also appear in the picture.

Judy Kelly is the young Australian actress who has already appeared with success in a number of British films during the past two years. Alma Taylor will be remembered for her work in silent films in this country. William Gargan is of course, the well-known Hollywood player who has been signed up by Gaumont British for this picture. He appeared with Joan Crawford in "Rain."

Primitive RacesFILM RECORDS TO BE MADE

London, Sept. 11.
Movie cameras will soon be making lasting records of those primitive races whose extinction within the next two or three generations is feared.

At the first International Congress of Anthropology and Ethnological Sciences, which has met in London, it was decided to send out special expeditions equipped with movie cameras to make film records of life among tribes which are believed to be dying out.

It was also decided to create a central film library in London with branches in all the principal centres of the world, where such celluloid records can be kept. In addition to the special expeditions travellers, explorers, traders, colonists, planters and others who make films of life among primitive peoples will be urged to send copies to this library of dying races.

The special permanent committee set up to study the question of compiling such movie records plans also to hunt up material for the library out of old news reels, tropical films and the junk heaps and store cupboards of the film world.—United Press.

BUILT ON GOLDTOWN MAY BECOME MINES.

Kalgoorlie and Coolgardie, the famous "golden" twin towns of Western Australia which have already produced more than $100,000,000 worth of gold, since the rush of 1892-93, are threatened with, at any rate, partial demolition, because, it is now believed, they themselves are built on a rich reef, an extension of the "golden mile."

Experts predict revolutionary changes there, says Austral News, and mining men are inundating the warden's court with applications for leases and permits to prospect areas on which now stand tramway sheds, hotels, and many private houses. Schemes for diamond drilling on town site areas are already in hand.

LOOPING THE LOOP.

A new record of "looping the loop" in an engineless plane has been accomplished by Herr Kuhn, of the Danzig Flying Corps.

Occupying his seat in the new Danzig engineless plane "Arthur Greiser" (of the "Grunau Baby II" type), he had himself hoisted to a height of 2,100 metres by an engineless machine. After being released, he "looped the loop" 85 times, thus breaking the previous record of 75 loopings.

the fifteenth century, is again sheltering a sailing ship—this time loaded with pirates for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Treasure Island," the Robert Louis Stevenson classic, now being filmed under the direction of Victor Fleming.

A small bay near the Isthmus located on the northern end of the island has been converted into a harbour to serve as anchorage for the "Hispaniola."

On board, a complete miniature studio has been placed in operation.

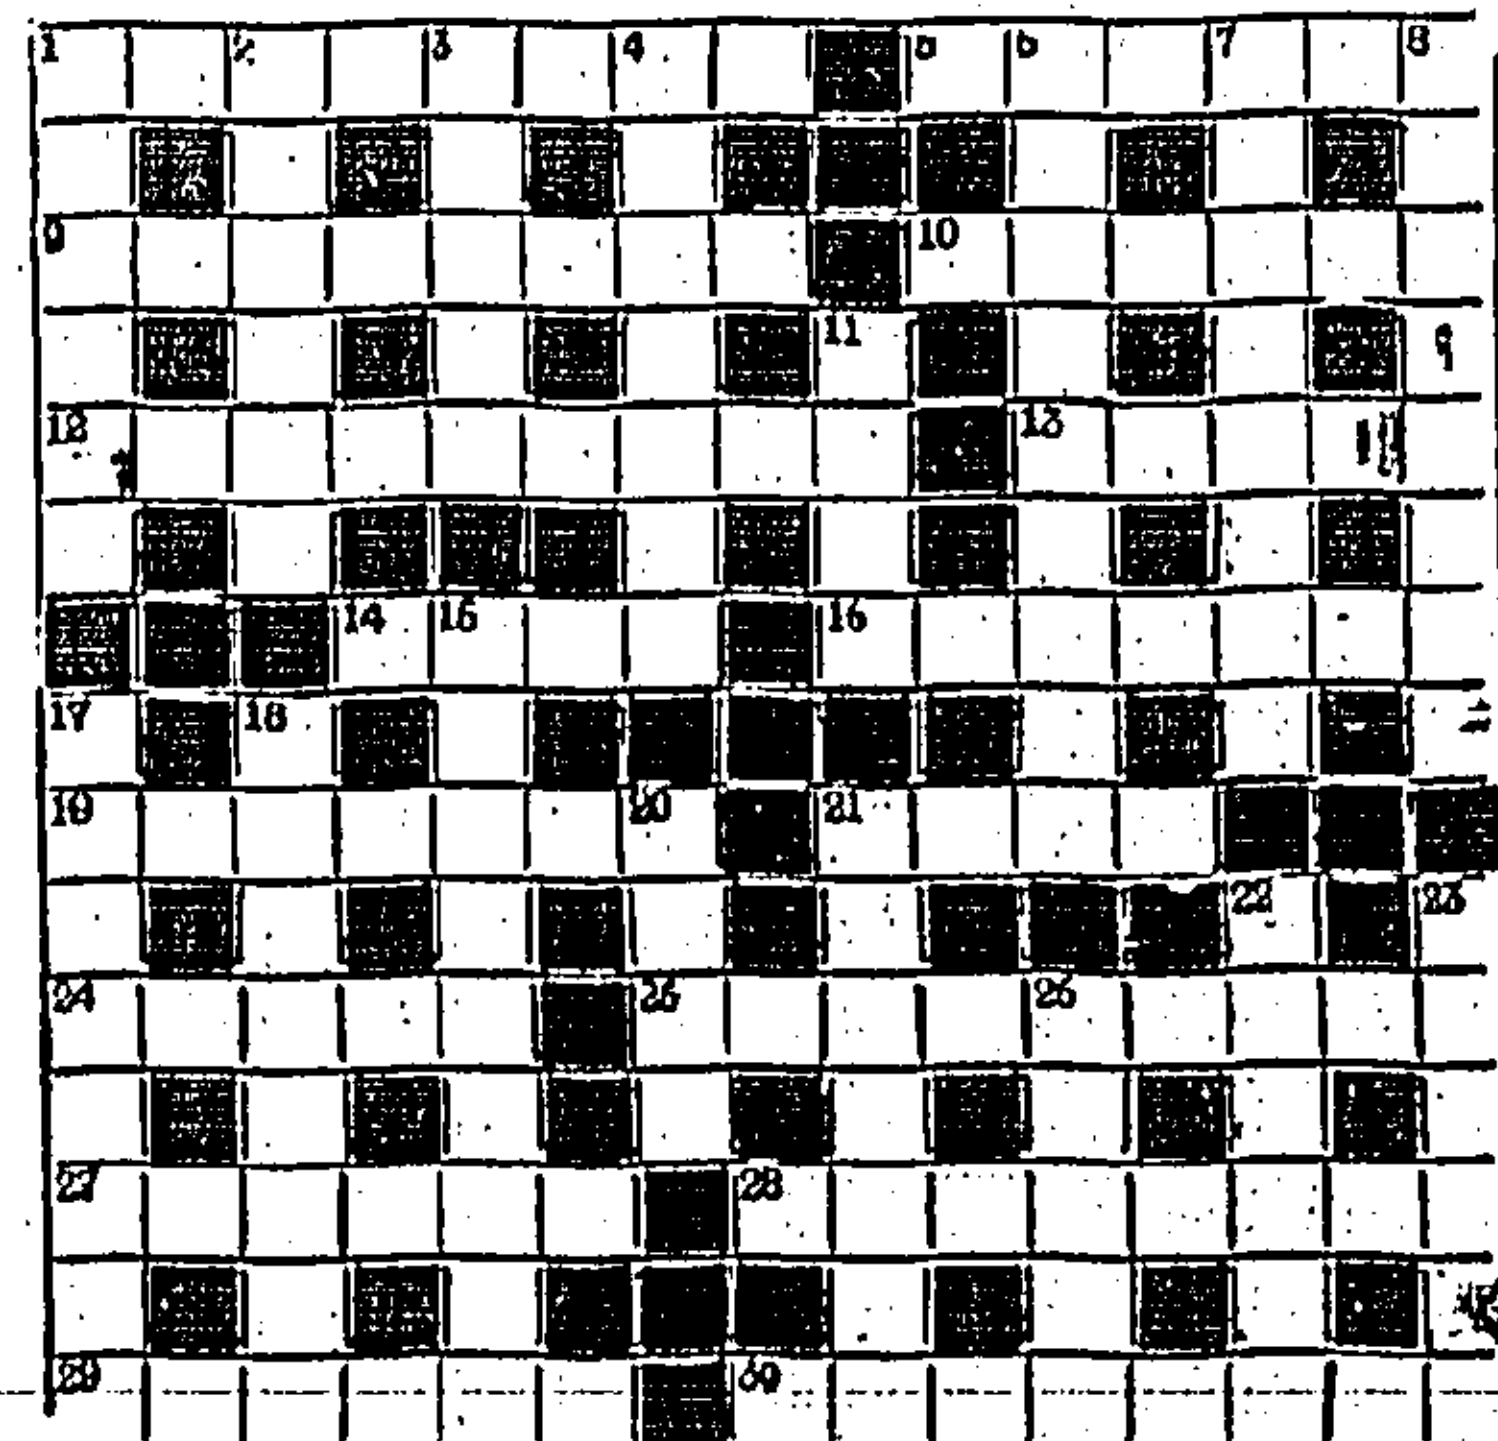

Members of the cast, including Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Otto Kruger, Lewis Stone, Nigel Bruce, and nearly a hundred character players have converted the ship's cabins into dressingrooms make-up and wardrobe departments.

MYSTERY OF SEA DEEPS PROBED BY SCIENCE

UNKNOWN WORLD REACHED BY BATHYSAPHERE WHEN PROFESSORS GO EXPLORING

By E. G. Boulenger

Some forty years ago Mr. H. G. Wells described in a short story how an intrepid oceanographer descended to the ocean abysses employing a hollow steel sphere fitted with a special breathing apparatus and observation windows.

This fantasy has come to pass in actual fact, for within the past week Dr. William Beebe, of the American Natural History Museum's Tropical Research Station, has descended off the Bermuda coast with his companion, Mr. Otis Barton, who took film pictures, in a similar steel chamber, termed a "bathysphere," to a depth of 3,000 feet. The divers state that this depth of more than half a mile would have been easily exceeded, but their object was scientific observation, and not mere record-breaking.

Dr. Beebe, in his latest communication, describes how he and his companion took film pictures of the ocean depths, reporting at the same time all they saw to a secretary in a yacht above. Fragments from the report refer to "fish looking like shooting stars gone mad," and the account generally indicated a world no one has previously been privileged to see.

The sphere's searchlight attracted weird and wonderful fish, which dashed themselves against the windows as do birds and moths against the lighthouse lamp-chamber.

"THE BATHYSAPHERE."

The "Bathysphere" is, briefly, a globular steel case just large enough to contain two men and a camera. A view of the world without is afforded by three windows of fused quartz three inches thick and eight inches in diameter. These windows give a clearer view than glass, and can, moreover, withstand a pressure of many tons. The sphere is only big enough to permit of a

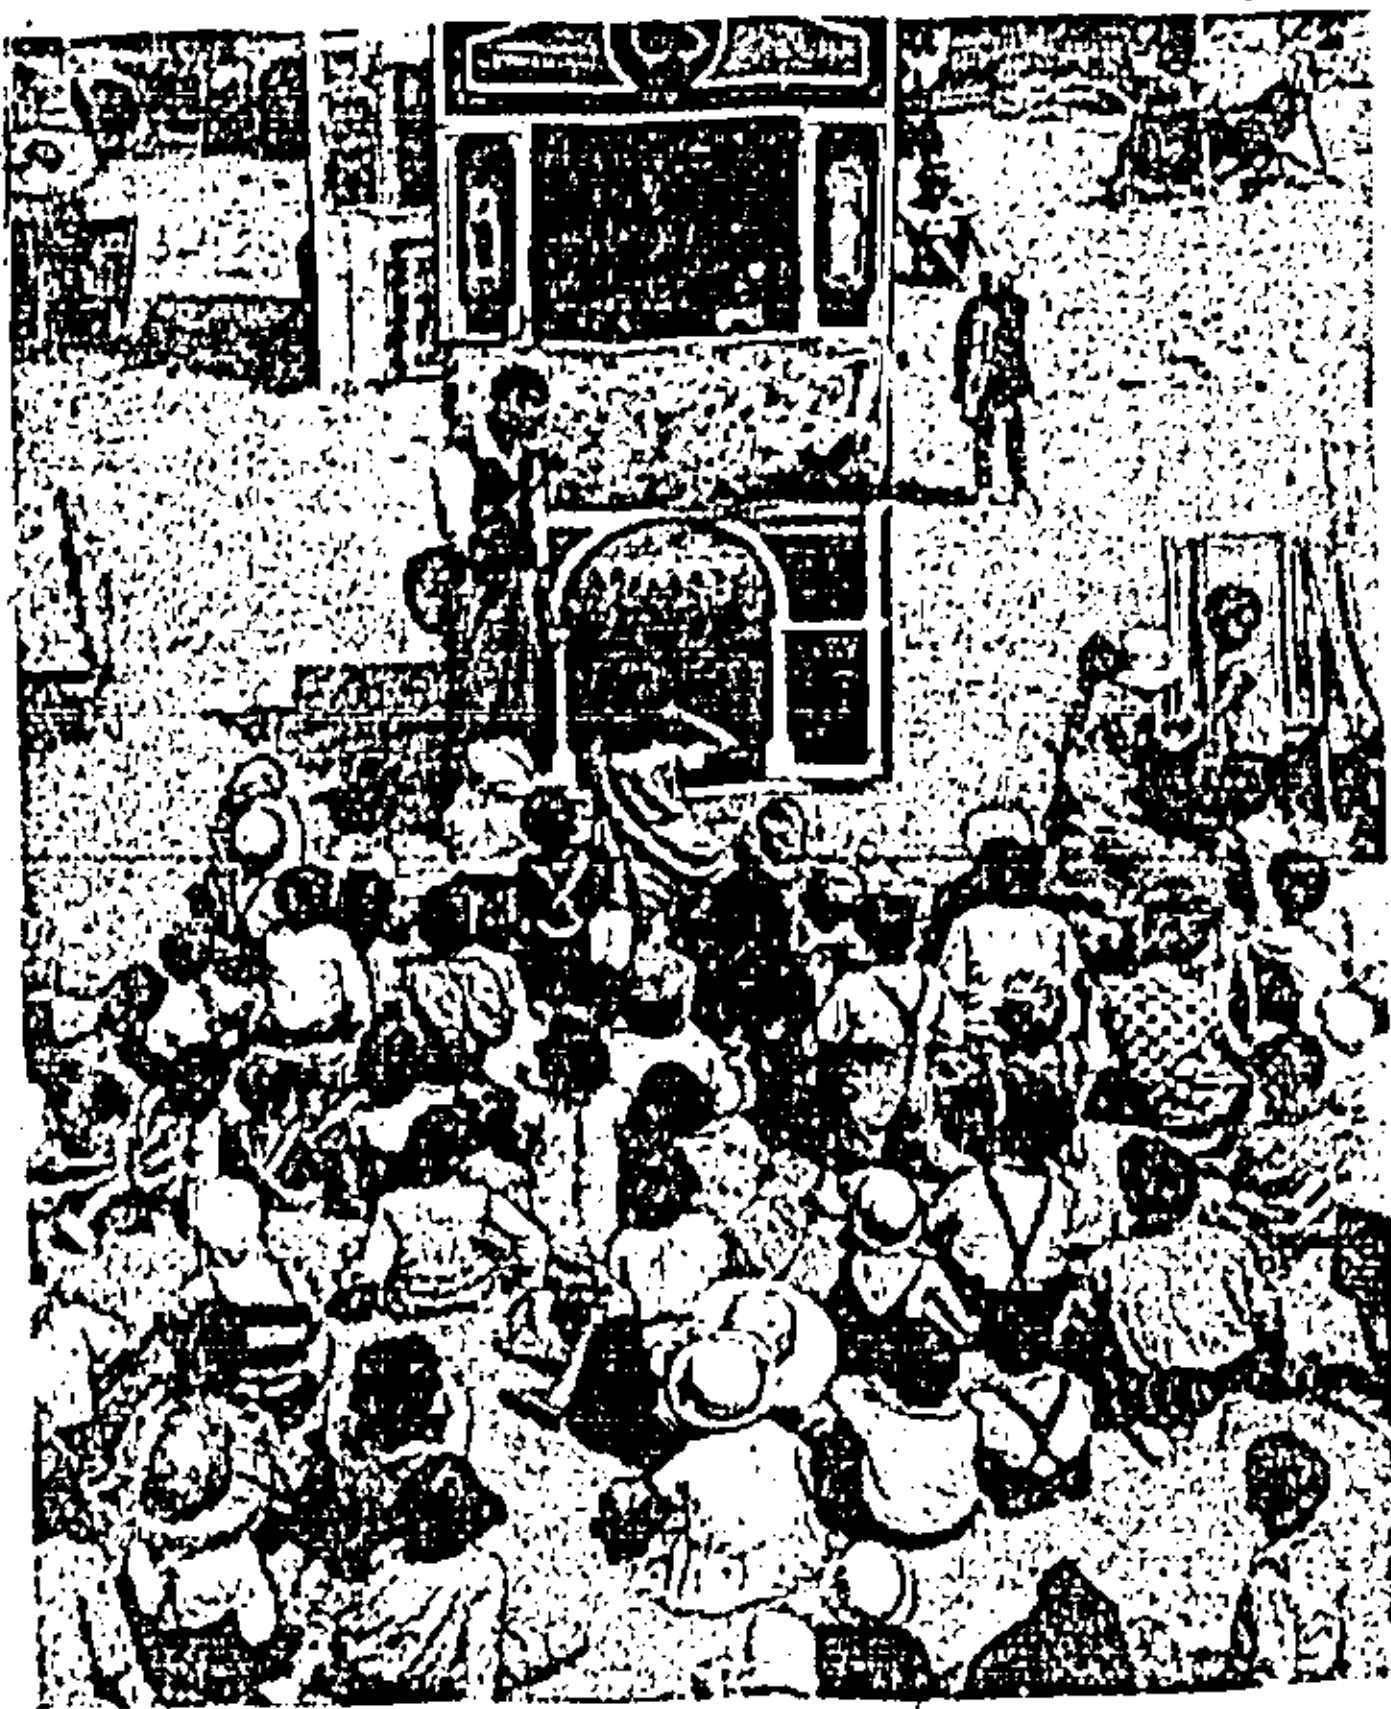

INNUMERABLE LIGHTS.

At greater depths Stygian darkness shut down upon the awful stillness of the deep, yet a darkness pierced by innumerable lights. Uncountable swarms of minute molluscs, known as Pleurotopes, or "Sea Moths," flittered round the sphere in phosphorescent clouds. Fish in varying forms, and bearing light organs of innumerable kinds, augmented a world crowded with life and infinity of shapes. The prevalent colouring of these creatures appeared to be black or vivid red; the latter being the dominant hue of most of the crustaceans.

Life in the abyss would appear to be as crowded as in the surface waters. Many of the fish common to the Continental shelf are in the depths attuned to their peculiar environment in special ways. The normal angler fish, for example, wave its lure in vain in utter darkness. To meet this exigency, therefore, the fleshy lure, which is attached to the end of a rodlike fin, is transformed into a luminous bulb, and this attracts other fishes to their doom.

Not only the waters, but the abyss floor itself has a large population, and since the sea bed is often of an oozy and yielding nature special adaptations are required for the creatures frequenting it. Many prawns and crabs walk upon this shifting floor on high stilted legs. Many of the inhabitants are pursued by bottom-feeding sharks which illuminate the sea bed by means of innumerable lights upon their under surfaces.

It is the use of lights, indeed, which constitute one of the greatest marvels of this inky world. The common cuttlefish of the abyss, for example, carries on its body twenty-two globular light organs—two ruby red, two sky blue, one ultramarine, and the remainder squatting posture, and is entered by a manhole which is firmly screwed into position when the interior is occupied. In action the "bathysphere" is lowered by means of a steel cable and communication with those on the ship is held by means of a telephone. The possibilities of such a contrivance are obvious.

The trained observer, in looking out on the ocean bed, can give at first hand accurate descriptions of innumerable matters which would otherwise be only dimly guessed at as the result of trawlings. Too often specimens gathered from depths of more than 2,600 feet come to the surface damaged beyond identification owing to the sudden relaxation of the enormous pressure to which they are normally subjected. The movements of such creatures and their general ways of life must, therefore, be matters of conjecture, but the "bathysphere" opens up new vistas in the realms of deep sea exploration.

Dr. Beebe's "bathysphere" is an improved model of the first conception built seven years ago, and which was first tried out off the coral reefs of Non-Such Island, Bermuda, in comparatively shallow water. As time progressed ever-increasing depths were explored, and interesting revelations of the waterworld resulted. It was found that at a depth of 100 feet visibility was excellent, but at 200 feet the orange faded from the spectrum, and at 300 feet the water was of an intense blue, which, as Dr. Beebe has described, "seemed to fill the sphere, so that its crouching occupants were completely concealed by the protecting walls."

white or yellow. Another deep sea squid stores its light in the form of two masses not unlike tooth-paste or artist's colour, and under stimulus these substances are squeezed into the water, where they diffuse in a cloud of greenish light. The ordinary ink screen so effective in shallow water would naturally be of little use where all is darkness, and it is interesting, therefore, to note this singular adaptation which in the deeps is also shared by certain prawns.

A DEEP SEA "LINER."

Some of the forms known are quite inexplicable. One of the most baffling has just been discovered at a depth of 1,000 feet. The creature is a fish which begins life with its eyes planted on stalks half the length of its body. On reaching maturity and a length of 14 inches, the eyes assume a normal position and the fish then develops huge teeth, a complex barbel, and a row of light organs along its body which make it look like a miniature liner with every porthole illuminated.

Certain small fishes less than a quarter the size of this miniature dragon are without teeth, and bear a huge light upon either cheek. At first they were thought to be the larvae of the stalk-eyed creatures, but they have now been identified as males, and are known to lead parasitic lives on their relatively gigantic consorts.

Mr. Beebe in his latest communication states that "every dive convinces me of the futility of trying to forget the true idea of deep sea exploration."

TRAINING OF CHILDREN

Too Much Culture Not Good

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mrs. Bird arrived in a flutter of chiffon and a flutter of words. That settled it. This meant that the new Millers were accepted in the new town, for Mrs. Bird was social arbiter.

She was very nice but very superficial. Little points of etiquette and your type of furniture settled in Mrs. Bird's mind whether or not you belonged to the elect. It was a sort of try-out call and Mrs. Miller knew it.

Lucy was most likely to be the straw that would gum up the whole works. Lucy was ten. She was a tousle-headed thingy, and she said startling things.

But Lucy had been drilled. "If you come in and say, 'I'll tell the world,' or 'You're telling me,' 'I'll ruin you,' spoke her mother. "And for goodness sake, learn to make a decent curtsy. They're still doing it in this town. Oh, yes, shake hands if she offers to. Sit down for ten minutes, keep your mouth shut and your feet and hands still and say, 'Yes, Mrs. Bird,' or 'No, Mrs. Bird,' and don't stare. Got it?"

CHANGE OF MANNERS.

Lucy shouted. "I'll tell the world. Don't worry—I'll be apple-pie."

"And don't giggle. She uses a lorgnette and she says 'caww' and 'waahh.' Now mind."

Well—Lucy minded. She was not Lucy but somebody else. She was a good little actress. Everything went off very well. And as Mrs. Bird let her say, "I want Lucy to come over and see Oriol. There are so few cultured children for her to play with. I am very careful. You must feel the same way."

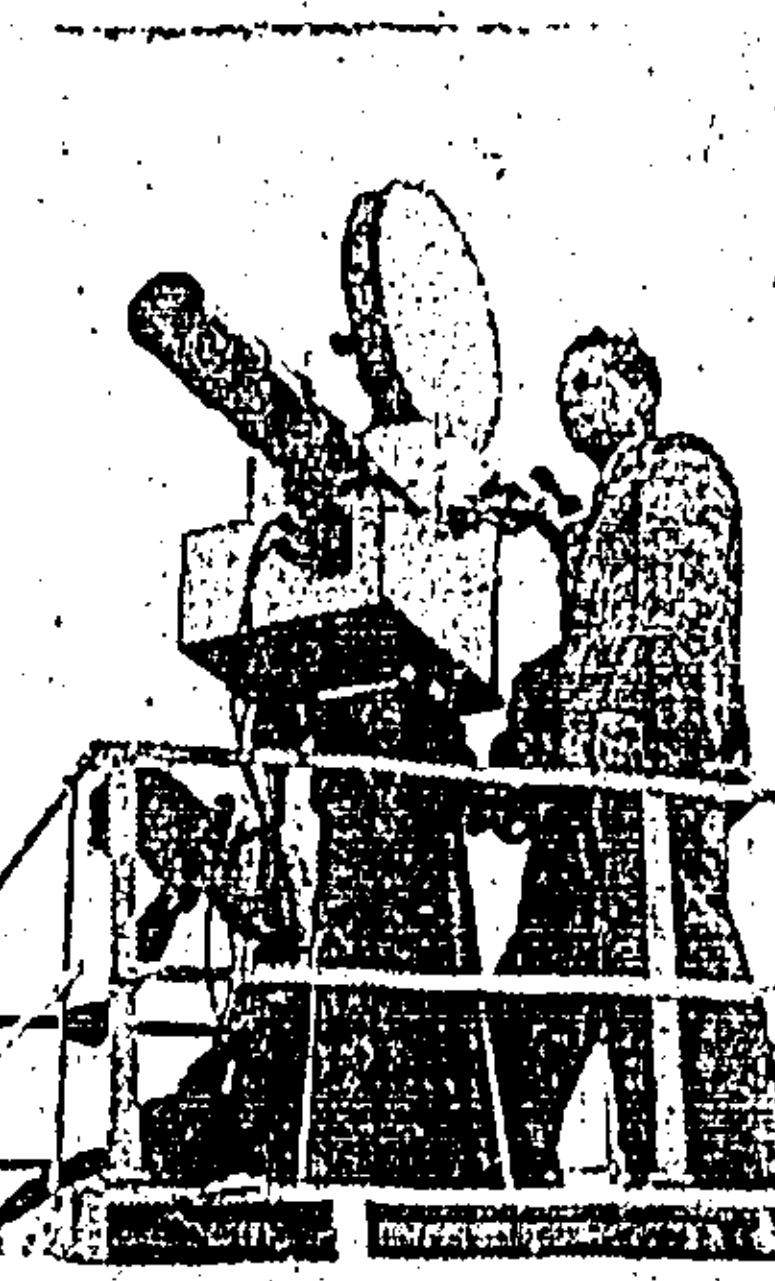

In that town it happened that every mother, in order to keep in with the rich Birds and have their children say they were friends of Oriol's, tried to mold their youngsters' manners after those of the artificial child. Not that it hurt them much to get some real manners, but this is not the end of the story.

Oriol was artificial. She concealed her real self under an unreal exterior that one sensed was untrue and forced.

In five years every girl of her set was a "prim Priscilla" who gushed commonplace nothings, who over-acted politeness and hid frank and real personality so constantly it was a complete bore to talk to any of them.

TOO MUCH.

Then Mrs. Miller began to worry. Her nice little Lucy was becoming so superficial she no longer knew her. Once she said, "Lucy, I'd give anything to hear you say 'Darn it all,' or 'You're crazy,' or something natural once in a while. Be yourself. No one can stand any of your crowd. You'll all die old maids. Butter tongues—all of you."

Television machine in action at the Nazi ceremony in Berlin where Herr Hitler spoke to a million Nazis.

But Oriol went to a certain grand young ladies' school, and the rest, of course, had to go, too. They came home "poised." "Yes, Mrs. So and So," "No, Mrs. So and So." It became a polite but deadly chant.

When Lucy was nineteen she was a complete sphinx and a stranger to her own family. And then Mrs. Miller wept. "What a mess I've made of her. I wish I'd brought her up in a mining camp in overalls. I've buried my real girl forever."

NAZIS TRAINING SAAR LEGION

READY TO MARCH OVER FRONTIER

Saarbrücken, Sept. 2. Germany is training a special Saar Legion, similar to the recently disbanded Austrian Legion, ready to launch into the Saar.

It is composed of young Saarlanders aged between 18 and 25, who are given a semi-military training in German labour camps "befitting them for the struggle in the Saar."

In addition, a special group of air pilots has been trained in the Saar itself under the aegis of apparently neutral sport associations.

These disclosures are made by the Saar Governing Commission, which publishes documents recently confiscated during a police raid on the German Front headquarters in Saarbrücken.

The Governing Commission has hitherto allowed Saarlanders to take part in voluntary labour service in Germany, but on the grounds of the material now discovered such participation is in future to be illegal.

The documents disclose that in October, 1933, the Prussian Government entrusted the Reich Voluntary Labour Service Association with the task of training 10,000 young Saarlanders in German labour camps. They were to be retained in Germany till the plebiscite in 1935 or until such time "as they should be recalled to the Saar."

The original figure of 10,000 has been exceeded by 5,000.

The organisation in the Saar of the voluntary labour service is in constant communication with the Secret Police in Berlin. Saarlanders who give unfavourable reports of conditions in Germany and in the labour camps are denounced in Berlin and in some cases sent to concentration camps in Germany.

COLUMBIA NAVY RECRUITS

BRITISH SAILORS DISILLUSIONED

MIGHT HAVE HAD TO FIGHT

Nine British ex-Naval ratings who in February agreed to serve for two years in the Colombian Navy returned to England recently wearing the uniform of the Royal Navy with cap ribbons bearing the names of the destroyers Antioquin and Caldas.

They landed at Plymouth on the arrival of the liner Simon Bolivar from the West Indies and the rest of the party of 150 will be returning shortly.

"We are fed up," one man with three good conduct stripes declared. "We expected a square deal and did not get it."

"We went out purely in an advisory capacity to assist in training the Colombian sailors, but on arrival we were told we should have to fight if necessary. Our King's Regulations were read over to us every day, and we had to abide by them and also by the regulations of the Colombian Navy."

"Our contracts stated we should be paid in English money, but we were given foreign currency, which was worth considerably less, so we are all cancelling our contracts and coming home."

"They wanted to disarm me and tried to remove the good conduct badges I had earned in our Navy," another man declared.

The departure of the men for the Colombian navy caused a scene in the House of Commons on May 30. When Mr. Geoffrey Mander, Liberal M.P. for East Wolverhampton, protested against their enlistment he was accused by the First Lord of the Admiralty (Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell) of holding up England to international obloquy, and a meeting of Liberal M.P.s was held to discuss what was described as a gross Ministerial

ANIMAL HEROES GIVEN MEDALS

BODO, THE ENEMY OF REBELS

Vienna, Sept. 10.

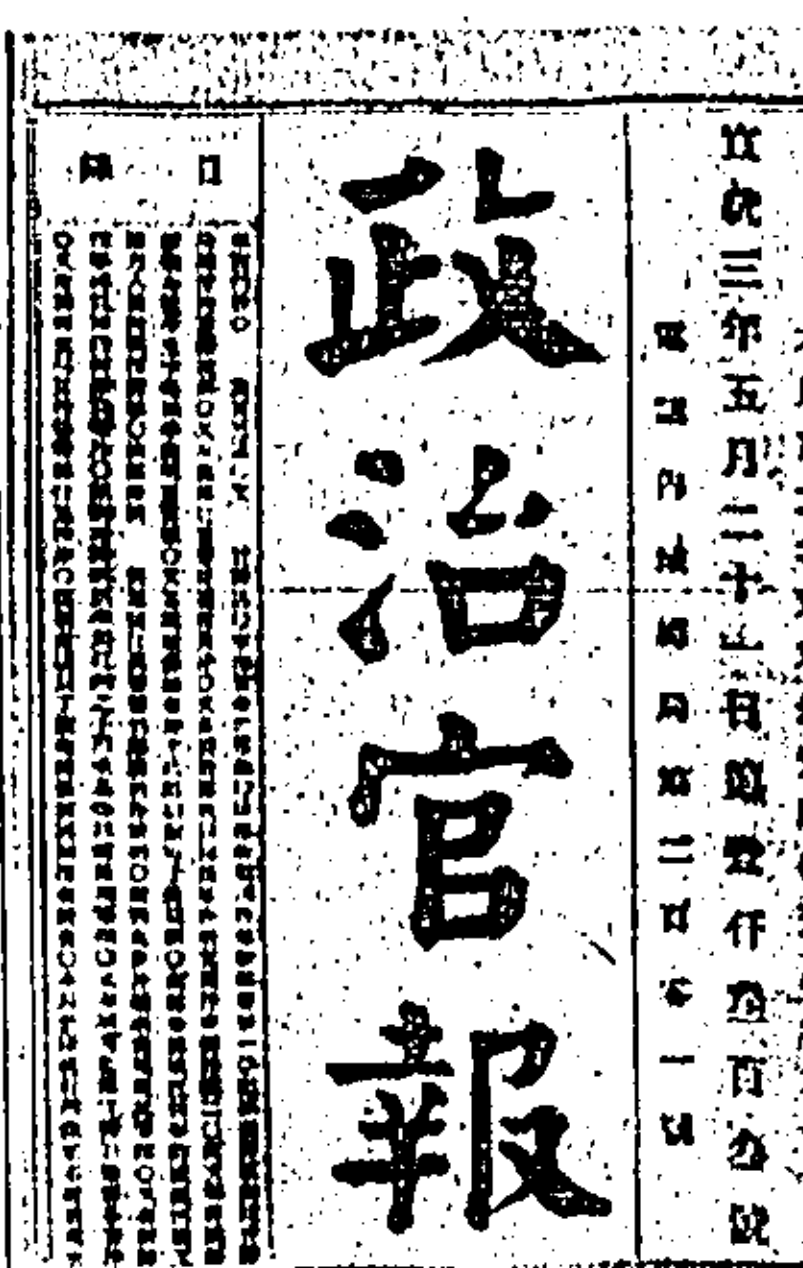

The Vienna Society for the Protection of Animals have decided to award medals to animals that have saved human lives.

The first animal to be thus decorated will be a small mongrel dog from Fernitz, near Graz, which saved a small child from drowning. Another recipient will be Bodo, a German sheep-dog, now a police dog.

During a rising, his master, who is a police-inspector, was surrounded by the rebels and threatened. However, Bodo bit everybody who menaced his master.

Some weeks ago Bodo's master had an opportunity of saving his faithful dog's life. Bodo jumped into the Danube just when a big paddle-steamer was approaching.

His master, in full uniform, jumped into the water and saved the dog from being drawn into the paddles. Another dog, awaiting decoration is the police-dog Prinz, which can detect the smell of birdlime. He jumps at those who carry it, and has thus saved many birds from traps and death.

AIR RACE PROMOTER'S GENEROSITY.

Sir Macpherson Robertson, the Australian millionaire chocolate manufacturer, who has already given £15,000, a gold cup valued £600, and gold medals as prizes for the London to Melbourne air race has now given another £500 as prize for a Melbourne to Hobart (Tasmania) race, to be flown after the main race.

This brings the number of "side" races in Australia, for which competitors in the main race are eligible, to six, says Austral News. Prize money amounts to approximately £6,000.

RINTELEN LOSES HIS RICHES

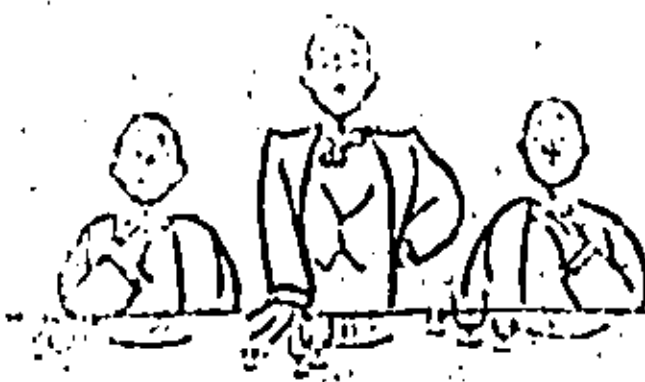

Confiscated To Pay For Nazi Revolt

Vienna, Sept. 1.

The villa and property of Dr. Rintelen, the man whom the Nazi rebels of July 26 proclaimed as the successor to Dr. Dollfuss, the murdered Chancellor, have been confiscated.

With the money standing to his credit in Styrian banks, the property will be used by the Government towards paying for the damage caused by the rising. It is estimated that the value of the villa and property, which are

RUSSIA TO JOIN LEAGUE

SOVIET MAKES ONE RESERVATION

Geneva, Sept. 16. The Soviet has decided to enter the League with one important reservation.

Having accepted the invitation to join the League, and having consented to submit all future disputes to the League International Court, Moscow explicitly refused to submit to arbitration all conflicts which arose prior to Russia's actual admission.

This means that the hopes of governments desiring to exploit the Kremlin's adherence to the League for the purpose of forcing Russia to face an arbitral tribunal on long-standing disputes have been crushed.

Since Articles 12 and 13 of the League Covenant leave it open to States to submit their disputes to arbitration or judicial settlement, the Soviet considers it necessary to make clear its opinion that such methods should not be applicable to conflicts regarding questions arising before the Soviet's entry into the League of Nations.

The French Delegation early this morning telephoned the numerous delegations requesting them to visit M. Barthou's headquarters to sign the invitation to Russia.

The first to sign was M. Barthou, the second Mr. Anthony Eden, after which 20 others appended their names. By 11 a.m. M. Barthou had received the assurances of 33 delegates of their readiness to sign immediately, a two-thirds majority requiring 35, which is believed easily obtainable.

The invitation will be despatched to M. Litvinoff early this afternoon. M. Litvinoff's reply will be transmitted forthwith, so the Soviet's formal entry will probably be on Tuesday or Wednesday.—United Press and Reuter.

Thirty Signatories.

Geneva, Sept. 16. The invitations to Russia were signed by 30 League members.

In addition, four Scandinavian States sent a separate Note stating that their governments will inform Moscow direct of their intention to support the Soviet's entry into the League.

All of the British Dominions signed the League invitation to the Soviet except the Irish Free State.

The European non-signatories were Belgium, Holland, Portugal, Luxembourg and Switzerland.

The Soviet application comes before the Bureau on Monday, and the subsequent formalities will be completed by Tuesday evening.—Reuter.

A Permanent Seat.

Geneva, Sept. 16. The League Council this evening unanimously confirmed its previous unofficial decision to give Russia a permanent seat on the Council.

Three abstentions, namely, Argentina, Portugal and Panama did not alter the unanimity vote.

M. Barthou, interviewed by the press, stated that the "three abstainers did not raise objections, therefore the vote was unanimous."—United Press and Reuter.

Litvinoff's Letter.

Geneva, Sept. 16. M. Litvinoff, in a letter accepting the League invitation, says that the Soviet undertakes to observe all international obligations and decisions binding members, in conformity with Article 1 of the League Covenant. The Soviet is especially glad to

POLISH ABRIGATION OF TREATY.

EXPERTS DEPLORE BECK'S SPEECH

London, Sept. 16. Enthusiasm in Warsaw over what is declared there to be "Poland's release from the humiliation of Minorities Treaties, and the emergence of the country as a Great Power" is now subsiding.

Calmer voices are beginning to express doubts as to whether the broadside fired by Colonel Beck, Polish Foreign Minister, into the League Assembly on Thursday, really helps Poland's demands for the removal of injustices which she claims the Minorities Treaties impose on "inferior States."

Prominent jurists deplore the methods adopted by Poland. They point out that these methods will bring Poland into conflict with Britain, France and Italy over the inviolability of the Treaty of Versailles—a matter vastly greater in importance, even for Poland, than the Minorities Treaties.

Although the minorities in Poland number 10,000,000 out of a population of 33,000,000, jurists point out that the Treaties, in practice, never proved unenforceable, in view of the friendly atmosphere at Geneva.

While action over the Minorities question is entirely unconnected with the Eastern Locarno proposals, or Poland's political relations with any individual State, well-informed quarters here feel that the likelihood of Poland accepting the proposed Pact is daily growing more remote.—Our Own Correspondent.

enter the League at the moment, when the question of amendment to the Covenant, in order to bring it into harmony with the Briand and Kellogg Pacts and to banish completely international warfare, is being considered by the League, the latter states.—Reuter.

Admission on Tuesday.

Geneva, Sept. 16. The telegram inviting the Soviet to join the League was yesterday being signed at the hotel where the French delegation is quartered. It was believed that all the signatures would be affixed by 6 p.m. and a telegram forwarded during the evening, signed by over two-thirds of the powers who are members of the League, so that Russia's admission by the Assembly would be possible on Tuesday.

Monday is reserved for the election of members of the Council of the League.

It is expected that all the formalities in connection with the admission of the Soviet to the League of Nations will be accomplished by Tuesday and that the formal installation will take place on Wednesday.

Nearly 40 signatures to the invitation were appended by noon, which is over the requisite two-thirds.—Reuter.

Attack on Soviet.

Geneva, Sept. 16. When the League Assembly meets to-morrow, M. Motta (Switzerland) is expected to launch an attack on Russia's entry to the League.

Despite any protests, the Assembly will formally vote on the admission question on Tuesday or Wednesday.—United Press.

Three New Members.

Geneva, Sept. 16. The Assembly on the League of Nations on Monday will elect three members to the Council. Spain is certain to be re-elected and Chile is certain to succeed Panama, but China's necessary two-thirds majority is uncertain. She may therefore be succeeded by Turkey.—United Press.

BUILDING CLOSED.

PREMISES IN QUEEN'S ROAD DECLARED DANGEROUS

Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, made a closing order against Nos. 38 and 40 Queen's Road, Central, on an application by Mr. C. H. Robertson, of the Public Works Department.

The order was taken out against Kam Man-hing, sub-tenant of the premises, for whom Mr. W. K. Robinson, of Messrs. Tao & Hodgson, appeared.

Mr. Robinson, in the witness box, stated the application was made owing to the dangerous condition of the walls.

Mr. Robinson, who opposed the order, admitted his client received the rents.

Mr. Hamilton said that the only thing he was concerned with was in keeping the premises closed, as it was in a dangerous condition.

Mr. Robertson added they had served notices on the tenants and all had evacuated, except the ground floor tenants.

Mr. Hamilton said that it was perfectly obvious that Mr. Robinson's difficulty was that he could not go ahead and do what the Building Authority wanted done, because they had no power. Therefore, if he made a closing order it would be in his favour. If there were other owners they could make an objection. The moment he came up and said that the repairs had been effected to the satisfaction of the Building Authority, he would be prepared to cancel the order.

Mr. Robinson agreed, but if the Building Authority was not satisfied with the repairs effected, they would be losing the rents.

Mr. Hamilton, making the order, said that his business as a Police Magistrate was to do a drastic thing, because it was absolutely necessary. If there was any order subsequently which could be made by him to facilitate matters, he would be prepared to make it with pleasure.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. For by it the elders obtained a good report. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear" (Hebr. 11:1-3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life and Love are substance, as the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: "The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance. The spiritual universe, including individual man, is a compound idea, reflecting the divine substance of Spirit" (p.468).

LOVELY GIRL?

or just ordinary?

MEN CAN TELL by the Smartness of her Make-up!

MEN compare her with other girls and find her lovelier by far! Men are attracted by beautiful lips, but no man likes "painted" lips. Her lips never shrink "pale." For she always uses Tangee Lip-stick. It gives lips youthful color men admire, without risking a painted appearance.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE! Tangee contains a magic color-change principle. In the stick it looks orange. But put it on and notice how it changes on your lips to the one shade of rose most becoming to your coloring...the natural shade for you. Thus Tangee gives lips a healthy glow of youth not an artificial, painted look. Made with a special cream base, Tangee softens and soothes, prevents chapping. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look...make the face seem older. PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look. It's convincing and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

SOME PENALTIES OF DEMOCRACY

A point which is often overlooked by students of world affairs is that democracy's shortcomings have to be accepted along with its benefits. The industrial warfare which has been causing so much trouble in the United States is a case in point. There is, quite naturally, a demand that some way should be found out of upheavals of this kind. Unfortunately, however, the time has yet to come when industrial strife will have become a thing of the past. In one sense, these periodical interruptions of the normal run of life, destructive and costly as they may be, are almost inevitable where democratic ideas hold sway. The facts are better realised when we look abroad to other countries. Russia has no strikes because there is not, strictly speaking, anyone for the workers to strike against except themselves. Technically, at least, they own the country. They cannot have a dispute with the management because they are the management. That is one way to make strikes impossible—to liquidate the employing class. Italy is another land in which strikes are unknown. The Italian worker cannot strike because, if he does, he strikes against a Government which will have no hesitation in coming down on him. He is really a cog in a machine, and in that capacity he takes what is handed him—and likes it. That is another way to prevent strikes—to liquidate the labour movement. Under a democracy, neither of these solutions is possible. There must remain, then, an amount of freedom within which either the employer or the worker can, if he feels justified, indulge in industrial war; and there is no way of making this impossible except by sliding off in the direction of either Fascism or Communism—which, of course, means abandoning democracy. These thoughts reveal the kind of deep water we get into when we talk about making strikes impossible. The strikeless millennium will have to wait until the whole industrial field is pervaded by the justice, the public spirit and the sense of responsibility which are, ultimately, democracy's greatest safeguards.

NOTES OF THE DAY

RECRUITING, RUSSIA

Through a lobbying campaign such as was never seen before at Geneva, France, and other sympathetic nations, have succeeded in winning a free road for the entry of Soviet Russia to the League of Nations. In spite of opposition, not the least of which came from the Vatican, and which consequently created a delicate situation outside the political aspects of the case, Russia has apparently been "approved" by the fraternity of nations and has early attendance at the Council table can be anticipated. An understanding has been reached, and the charges that France was attempting to evade or circumvent the League's Sixth Commission, which is supposed to decide whether a country applying for membership has the necessary qualifications, have been forgotten. Rome's warning that Russia's admission, against the will of member nations, might further undermine the prestige of the League, has had no effect. Perhaps the suave diplomacy of M. Litvinoff has helped to counteract opposition.

WORLD REVOLUTION

But there is something yet to remember. An official Russian newspaper recently said that "when the drums of the great Red Army resound and the Russian bayonets are raised, it will be the moment for the liberation of India and China and the dawn of world revolution." Will the Soviet forget these dangerous doctrines when she accepts League membership and promises to strive for the preservation of peace? Will Moscow cease those operations overseas which have been calculated to stir up revolt among the workers of the un-Sovietized world? Unless she does, her attendance at Geneva will provide a most ridiculous anomaly and do more harm than good.

MINORITIES PROBLEM

Poland has announced that she will no longer co-operate with international bodies in the protection of minority populations, and the weight of world opinion, or at least, of the Great Powers, is against her. Baron Aloisi of Italy has pointed out that while there is a possibility of the revision of the Treaty of Versailles, by which Poland is bound to work with other signatories for the welfare of the minorities, revision can only be accomplished by legal methods and existing arrangements must be respected until they are altered with the approval of all. He might have found an analogy with which China is familiar, namely, the Extraterritoriality agreements. Though China may wish to end them, she cannot do so without the consent of other Powers who are joint signatories. Reform cannot be brought about by unilateral action where international agreements are concerned, any more than the party of any legal undertaking can make his contract null and void by refusing to conform. There is international machinery for revision in such matters, just as there is in civil law. The rules of the game must be observed; and for infringement there is a penalty.

WAR ON CRIME

America's war on crime, the federal and state and municipal authorities' campaign to stamp out big business racketeering, has been brought to what some people declare is a successful conclusion. Diamond, Capone, Detroit's Purple Gang, Egan's Rats of St. Louis, million dollar organisations, all of them, are gone. There is only the debris, the little gunmen, left; and they are not a major menace. There remains, however, another battle to be fought, not with machine-guns, and saved-off shotguns in back streets and back-alleys, but a shrewdly calculated and strategic contest in which some of the sharpest legal wits will be pitted against each other. The federal government has decided it is time to attack the unscrupulous attorneys who keep criminals out of prison; and will work to purge the country of lawyers who connive at and abet illegal acts. When they have been removed, America will be able to boast that it has crushed the gangster; but at the moment it is much too early for complacency.

POLITE WORDS YOU SHOULD NOT USE

By ROBERT LYND

At irregular intervals a controversy arises in the Press over the use and misuse of words. Purists rush into print to denounce the split infinitive, the use of "compare to" instead of "compare with," and that evergreen monotony (as they think it) "unreliable."

Just at present a lively correspondence is going on in which the modern Englishman is taken to task for the barbarous way in which he mishandles his language. He is particularly censured for the unprecedented recklessness with which he employs nouns as adjectives, as in the phrases "luxury car" and "mystery ship."

At the same time, it seems absurd to use nouns as adjectives where good adjectives are already in existence. Why, for example, has it become the almost universal custom in recent years to speak of the "England team" in cricket and in other games? "English," and as short a word as "England," and has for centuries been recognised as the correct adjective. I do not think anybody speaks of the "France team" in any sport. It is all very well to use a noun as an adjective when no suitable adjective exists, as in "income-tax form," but the genius of the language demands that when an adjective is already there, it should be given first choice.

The misuse of nouns, however, is not the only sin against the language imputed to the modern Englishman. He is also accused of introducing all kinds of woolly and useless novelties into the language that shock the eye and ear. He has recently, for example, taken enthusiastically to using such adjectives as "carefree," "worthwhile" and "colourful." Reviewers speak of a "colourful narrative" and a "worthwhile book." It may be argued that the fact that thousands of people have adopted these words into their speech is a proof that they were needed. I doubt this, however.

The constant use or misuse of a word does not inevitably hall-mark it as good English. The word "individual" has been misused as a noun for generations, but no authority on English would say that long custom justifies a writer today in speaking of the British agriculturist as "this long-suffering individual"—an example quoted by Fowler. Great writers misused the word freely in the nineteenth century, but good writers seldom do now.

"Phenomenal" and "phenomenally," used in the wrong sense, are sturdy survivors of years of denunciation. Everybody is agreed that to write "phenomenal," meaning "remarkable" or "exceptional," is an abuse of language, and an entirely unnecessary abuse, since there are so many alternatives; but nearly everybody goes on writing it.

It is difficult—indeed, impossible—to say at what point an objectionable word ceases to be objectionable and becomes adopted into the family of good speech. "Mob" and "cab" were once objected to as vulgar abbreviations; but their usefulness in daily speech has outweighed all objections. We have seen in our own time how "cinema" has become good English, while "photo," a much older abbreviation, has never been accepted such. Why? Perhaps because the Victorians were more pedantic than we. Many of them objected even to the abbreviation, "lunch." Some people continue to object. I for my part will continue to write and say "lunch."

As for other words that the authorities tell us not to use, I dislike most of them myself. At the beginning of the century one became impatient of such words as "meticulous," "obsess," "intriguing" and "arresting," partly because everybody used them till one was as tired of them as of last year's music-hall songs and partly because most of them were comparative newcomers to the language and partly because they usually pretended to say more than the writer meant. The great test of the correct use of words is whether the writer uses them vaguely and lazily or whether he means exactly what he says. The chief objection to many vogue-words is that they lead to lazy writing and so to hazy reading.

This suggests that all words are good if they are used with a full sense of their meaning by a good writer. A good writer can turn a neologism or a slang phrase into good English. Not that good writers always write perfect English. Is it not from their works that most of the examples of bad grammar are taken against which the grammarians warn us?

At the same time, there is a general consensus of opinion about the words that are good English and those that are not. We may not all agree with Lord Oxford in his dislike of "cope with." We may not share the traditional antipathy to "partake of" in reference to food, though to me, I confess, it is an object of dislike. We may feel that those who wish to expel "relinquish" from the English language on the ground that it is an illegitimately formed word are over-zealous. We may fail to see the point of the clergyman's objection to "the dreadful word 'amenities.'"

At the same time, in regard to 99 words out of 100, most writers would agree as to whether a word is good English or not. I do not suppose that Dickens was consciously a purist, but even so scrupulous a stylist as Mrs. Meynell was able to discover in his novels only two words which he habitually misused. Unfortunately, if I remember right, she did not tell us what they were.

The fact is, all good writers write in obedience to a tradition while, at the same time, taking liberties with it. Even so, I hope few of them will take the liberty of giving "worthwhile" and "colourful" a permanent place in the English language.

The Very Idea!

THE BUDGET EXPLAINED

By George

GETTING the new angle of the Budget was the job deputed to us over the week-end and frankly, it proved a little beyond us.

The great thing appears to be that, seven million reduction in expenditure but when we asked a high Government official why we are going to take this huge amount of grease from the cogs of industry he said: "The truth is we are not taking it out because we couldn't put it in."

"We are absolutely hung up for dough all round and the only reason we are estimating for less credit is because when our credit is stopped long before we reach the total we had hoped to get through, we shall have so much less to explain away."

With this pessimistic forecast for 1935 he took out an Isa de Perfectos cheroot and steamed slowly away.

"But who do you think is going to spend seven million less?" We asked of another official who was smoking a Balkan Sobranie?

"We have all got to make sacrifices to attain the common good," he replied. "Even R.O. rewards will be cut down this year and many of the Government tenants will refrain from paying their rent. This will reduce our income and so we shall spend less."

It was obvious we were getting a great deal nearer to the truth. "But why are you budgeting for a two million deficit?" we queried of another official as he casually extracted our last Gold-flake from its case?

"Well, the fact is," he replied, "that's the only way we can get our hand on the Colony's surplus funds. While they are being hoarded up they remain a temptation to every enterprising mind besides running up a constant storage account. While we're spending it we know it's there and when it's gone we know we've had it. That's our policy."

Following which inspired dissertation on high finance we ran to the Bank and withdrew our last $30.

We weren't going to be stung for storage charge anyway.

TIMING THE DAVIS CUP

Some Amazing Figures

Below are some figures on the match between F. J. Perry and F. X. Shields in the challenge round of the Davis Cup compiled by Mr. H. M. Abraham, the Olympic Games athlete.

Mr. Abraham says he is amazed at the amount of strenuous lawn tennis which can be crowded into a very few seconds. It will be noted from his statistics that in the match in question, lasting over two hours, there was only 40 minutes of actual play, excluding first faults, double-faults and the time occupied in changing over, etc.

The following are the times of each rally from the time the effective service was struck until the point was decided. Where there was a double-fault it is shown thus.

In each set Perry served in the odd games. The name is the winner of the game. The times were taken with a one-tenth second watch. Each rally is indicated by a semi-colon.

PICNIC BAY STAKES.

SWEEPSTAKE TICKETS SELLING FAST.

The demand for tickets in the Picnic Bay Sweepstake shows no sign of diminishing, the number sold up to Saturday last being 71,700. NEARLY CHAMPIONS

CRAIGENGOWER & BOWLS LEAGUE

BEAT C.S.C.C. IN FINE STYLE

The success of Craigenower "A" against Civil Service on Saturday has brought the championship of the first division of the lawn bowls league well within their grasp, and it is now odds on the Happy Valley team winning back the title Kowloon Bowling Green took from them a year ago.

Craigenower outplayed Civil Service at all points, winning on every rink. It is not likely they will drop points in either of their two outstanding matches, one of which is against their second string, and the other against the Police. Both matches will be played at Craigenower, a powerful advantage to the potential champions.

Kowloon Bowling Green have a slender chance, but it cannot now be regarded in a very serious light. They must not only beat Kowloon Docks in their last game of the season, but have also to rely on at least one defeat of Craigenower if they are to have any further active interest in the championship.

SMART YACHT CLUB WIN.

The defeat of the Indian Recreation Club, champions of the second division, was not so sensational as it would have been a fortnight ago. The Indians had already made sure of the title, and could afford to lose. Nevertheless full credit must be given to the Yacht Club in visiting Sookpoo, and being the first team this season to make a bold bid for the second place, and a big win against the Recreation Club places them on a level footing with the Bowling Green, both having won 11 out of 16 matches, with five lost. The Bowling Green enjoy a superior shots average, but it seems probable the runners-up position will not be determined until the final matches.

TAKES A REST ON MEDICAL ADVICE

PRACTICE MATCHES DURING THE WEEK-END

USEFUL PERFORMANCE BY CLUB HALF BACKS

POWERFUL S. CHINA TEAMS

(By "Veritas").

Football made a tentative re-appearance in the Colony during the week-end, when a few of the clubs turned out teams for practice and trial games. Heavy grounds, plus the normal handicaps which face all players in their initial outing, tended to keep the standard of play to a rather low level. Albeit there were several promising individual performances noted, and the players showed willingness and enthusiasm.

Except in the closing stages, when it was a case of inferior stamina, the Club put up a useful showing against the Borderers. An entirely new feature of the civilian team was the splendid work of the half back, Pote Hunt and Robertson immediately found their form, and Tavlin promises to be an excellent successor to Andy Duncan.

Andy, incidentally does not contemplate playing much football this season. He feels he has had a very fair share and can well afford to give way to somebody else. Whilst sympathising with the viewpoint, I feel that before the season is half way through we shall see Andy back again in the blue and white shirts. He is now one of the playing dozens of the game here, and a fine sportsman which football in Hongkong cannot afford to lose.

TAVLIN DEVELOPING.

Tavlin's encouraging display did not come as a big surprise to those who have watched his work in the second string during the last three or four years. His ready anticipation and quick footwork makes him almost as useful a forward as half back (and vice versa); his only disability as an intermediate is lack of inches and weight.

Jack Pote-Hunt gives the impression that this season will see a return to that magnificent Shanghai form, and if L. G. Robertson can reject the claims of rugby, the Club have the makings of as fine a half back line as they have boasted since the hey-days of Jimmy Stewart.

The Borderers will undoubtedly be equally as strong this season as they were last when they swept all before them. Hearn promises to be a brilliant half back in place of Davis, and Hazlewood may have some difficulty in earning a place if Chapman continues to produce such good form. All of the "old stagers" realised expectations. The defence was

YANKEES DROP BACK

IN STRUGGLE FOR PENNANT

DOUBLE HEADER SUCCESSES

New York, Sept. 16. The marked feature of today's programme in the major baseball leagues was that in no double header games were the honours divided.

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs twice, while St. Louis Cardinals did likewise to New York Giants. Cincinnati Reds also took the whole of the points from Boston Braves in a double header.

Chicago White Sox twice defeated Boston Red Sox, and Philadelphia Athletics administered two licks to St. Louis Browns.

The Tigers further enhanced their pennant prospects by beating Washington Senators and seeing the Yankees fall victims to Cleveland Indians.

Full results as cabled by Reuter follow.

WOMEN'S GOLF CONTEST.

Great Britain Outplay Canada By Seven to Two.

Toronto, Sept. 16. An International Women's Golf Contest between Great Britain and Canada resulted in a victory for the former by seven matches to two, three being halved.

In the foursomes, Britain won by three matches to one, while in the singles the Mother Country scored four victories against Canada's one. The three halved matches were all in the singles.—Reuter.

INTER-SERVICES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

COMFORTABLE WIN SCORED BY THE ARMY

CAPT. CLYNTON REED DOES WELL AGAINST CDR. GLOVER

The Army won the inter-Services tennis championship at the All England Club last month for the fifth year in succession and for the twelfth time since 1920. The Army gained a lead of 5-4 over the R.A.F. on Monday in the singles, and they won all their doubles on Tuesday, the final totals being: Army, 11; R.A.F., 7; R.N. and R.M., 0.

Capt. J. Clynton Reed played first string for the Army in place of Lieut. C. R. D. Tuckey, the Army champion who was representing Great Britain abroad. He gave his side a good send off in beating the R.N. champion Comdr. P. F. Glover by two sets to one, driving with severity and control after an uncertain start. In his second match Clynton Reed was well beaten by the R.A.F. champion Flying Officer J. L. H. Fletcher whose powerful serving, deft volleying and the disconcerting stop-volley or drop-shot broke up the Army man's driving. Fletcher later faced Glover and made a fine recovery when 0-3 and 1-4 down in the third set to win five consecutive games for the match. Lieut. E. L. Percival scored two points for the Army without losing a set, and Lieut. H. F. C. Horne Comdr. Worthington (a former R.N. champion) and Flying Officer Shaw. The latter also beat Worthington, and Lieut. Hunter gained the R.A.F. another point (their fourth) before the singles were concluded.

HIGH CLASS DOUBLES.

The nine doubles matches on Tuesday all provided a high class of lawn tennis. The Royal Navy were unfortunate in having to compete in a championship they have won three times without many of their better players who were on foreign stations, and they failed to gain a point. On the other hand the R.A.F. deserve congratulation on their improved showing; the standard of play in the Air Force is notably higher of late with such players as Fletcher (an old Cambridge Blue) and R. G. Shaw and A. E. Harbot to reinforce the senior officers. The Army proceeded to win all six doubles to increase their total points to 11, and the R.A.F. won three points from the Royal Navy.

Among the notable results was the one-sided victory of Barclay and Clynton Reed, the Army first pair, over Fletcher and Hunter, the R.A.F. first pair by 6-1, 6-1. Barclay and Horne, the Army second pair, lost six games only in two matches, and their third pair, Fraser and Hudson were equal to winning their two matches in straight sets. In the three matches between the R.A.F. and the R.N. and R.M. the Senior Service were unable to win a point although Agnew and Dawson ran Fletcher and Hunter to three sets and 31 games, and Webb-Bowen and West won a set from Stovell and Harbot. English Football League Leaders Maintain Form

CONVENTRY THE ONLY TEAM TO FALL FROM GRACE

Leaders in all four divisions of the English football league, as well as those in the Scottish league, played a true to form on Saturday, the upshot being that there were only a few isolated surprise results.

Arsenal did not convince with their old goal in seven win at Highbury, but they secured the points which was the essential issue. Sunderland performed a far more impressive feat by visiting Aston Villa and walking off with a point. The reward for such a daring achievement was retention of the first division leadership.

London's big match at Stamford Bridge where Pensioners received the Spurs ended according to expectations. Tottenham were easily the better team.

Brentford will take a lot of shaking off this year. To visit Blackpool and draw was a highly satisfactory performance. Nevertheless Bolton refused to be outdone and carried away both points from Notts County to retain their 100 per cent. record.

Another Coventry reverse. Coventry followed up their partial reverses of a week ago when they were held to a draw on their own enclosure by Watford, by visiting Newport and losing, this being their first defeat of the season. It enabled Millwall and Charlton to improve their positions. Millwall scored away from home again, and Charlton simply had to beat Southend.

However, one of the best performances in this division was Reading's successful excursion to Northampton, where they placed the local defence three times to gain their best away win of the season to date.

The first seven teams in the northern section of the Third Division scored victories, and five of them were recorded on foreign soil. It was a great day for away teams in this division, no less than six taking the full complement of points.

There are no changes in the leading positions in the first division of the Scottish League. St. Johnstone, Clyde, Rangers and Hamilton all won, but Motherwell had to be content with a draw at Aberdeen.

It was a reasonably good day for the prophets. The Telegraph forecast gave 38 correct results, while the "Beat The Book" contained 11 out of twelve correct home results.

GOLF CHAMPION

Magnificent Feat By Lawson Little

New York, Sept. 16. Playing magnificent golf, W. Lawson Little, the British Amateur Golf Champion, carried off the American Amateur title at Brookline to-day, by beating David Goldman in the final over 30 holes, by eight and seven.

Goldman was absolutely outclassed, the champion being five up on the eighteenth hole, and was eight up on the twenty-seventh.—Reuter.

WHERE COUNTY CRICKET CAN SHOW SOME IMPROVEMENT

PLAYERS WHO WASTE VALUABLE TIME: THE RULE SHOULD BE ENFORCED: STILTING BATSMEN

Writing in the Sunday Observer, "Watchman" contributes an interesting survey of county cricket features, in the course of which he writes:

This has been a splendid season—except when the politics of the game have made a sinister entrance. Golden weather has kept company with an open championship, and although some of the clubs are still living on an overdraft, crowds have been as big as they can ever be, while ninety-nine per cent. of the people who are keen on cricket are tied to office, factory, shop, or coalmine for five and a half days a week.

But the sun does not always shine even in the pleasant world of bats and balls and stumps, and some of the old grievances remain. Everyone who frequents first-class matches, for instance, knows that intervals are still illegally extended with a complete disregard of the feeling of the spectators or the prospects of a definite result. The laws decree that ten minutes only shall elapse between innings, and the official duration of a luncheon interval is forty minutes, of ten intervals a quarter of an hour. But how often are these times observed?

VALUABLE TIME LOST.

Now, forty minutes does not seem unreasonable for lunch. And surely a quarter of an hour is long enough for anyone to sip a cup of tea, nibble a piece of cake, wash his hands, or even change his shirt if he feels so inclined.

Of course, no one expects a county cricketer to become the slave of the man who has paid his shilling at the gate, although to be unpunctual after a cricket match is as much a breach of manners as to be late for a personal appointment. But apart from any courtesy due to the spectators at a match, there is to be considered: wasted time leads on to drawn games. A simple process of arithmetic shows that five minutes stolen after lunch and after tea on each day of a first-class match make up a total of half-an-hour and half-an-hour can produce the difference between a tedious anti-climax and a thrilling victory.

ANOTHER TRANSGRESSION.

Another transgression common to cricketers concerns the time taken by incoming batsmen to arrive at the crease.

Law 45 plainly states that the umpires "shall allow two minutes for each striker to come in." The law continues, "When they" (the umpires) "shall call 'play,' the side refusing to play shall lose the match." Could a penalty be more drastic? It means that the guilt of one man shall fall upon the heads of the whole team and disgraceful defeat be recorded against them. Yet the rule is cynically disregarded, because no far no captain of a fielding side has had the moral courage to see that the punishment for its breach is carried out. Now, suppose that some strong-minded skipper requested the umpires to "clock" a batsman, that at the end of two minutes no batsman had arrived to answer the call of "play," and that the fielding team were awarded victory in just accordance with the law, what would happen?

To begin with, there would be an outcry by the crowd, especially if the incident occurred early in the day. It is also certain that the courageous captain would be frowned upon by his committee if his action robbed the coffers of a day's "gate." And many people would accuse him of sharp practice. They would say that cricket is a nice, friendly game, not a Factory Act. But such stern measures would lead to good results. There would be no late arrivals at the crease after that. The captain of the batting side would be very quick to "shoo" any leisurely member of his team out of the dressing-room and through the pavilion gate—yes, even if he hadn't got his pads on. When will that strong-minded captain arise?

RUINING YOUNG BATSMEN.

Another cloud in the sky of county cricket is the condemnation meted out by the official advisers of several clubs to any young player who shows signs of batting aggressively. To lift the ball, even when there is no one in the deep-field, is considered a deadly sin. The pull is condemned as far too risky to be employed in a first-class game. Tall young men with quick eyes and quick feet are remoulded and transformed into right-back-and-deflect-the-ball batsmen.

In many sides to-day you will find players who once had faith in their exceptional physical advantages with which they are gifted, but who now regard their pads as their best friends. The bat is an afterthought. In one of his early innings I saw Cox, of Sussex, caught near the boundary after he had scored close on fifty by orthodox forefoot methods. Another foot and that last hit of his would have been a six. And Cox was (Continued on Page 9.)

HONGKONG LOSE INTERPORT

FAILURES ON LAST DAY

Hongkong swimmers failed to hold the advantage they had gained in the triangular interport contest at Shanghai on Saturday, and were finally beaten for first place by Tientsin who finished in brilliant style, taking first place in the 100 yards backstroke, 440 yards free style and 50 yards free style.

Hongkong were beaten by four points in the final tally. The big disappointment to the Colony team were defeats on the last day in the backstroke and the 440 yards free style, while the fact that they were unplaced in the diving made a further contribution to the results.

Wilfred Lawrence remained the Colony's most successful representative, but Lionel Roza-Pereira disappointed, as did Lau Po-hay.

CREW OUTSAILED BY RAINBOW

Challenger Still Very Highly Regarded

POTENTIALLY AS FAST AS THE DEFENDING YACHT

The Endeavour's first attempt in her challenge for the America's Cup was a little disappointing. Although potentially as fast as the Rainbow, the Endeavour suffered from inferior seamanship on the part of her crew, and it was only sheer bad luck which deprived the Rainbow of drawing first blood in the series.

The race ended in a fiasco, neither yacht crossing the line within the time-limit and the race was declared null and void.

Experts were satisfied that as a yacht the Endeavour is as good as the Vanderbilt's Rainbow, but that it was handled poorly. Given briskeer conditions, however, and it is felt the Endeavour will enjoy a slight advantage. The Rainbow fully realised expectations.

Newport, R.I., Sept. 15. The weather forecast before the race was not too good, experts predicting light rain and fog, with a south-east wind.

Both boats had a final spin last night, and it is related that the Endeavour took in some lead ballast. Newport became a notable town when it was virtually the capital of the whole of the United States, following the arrival of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Sopwith, interviewed by Reuter before the race, stated that he had received hundreds of letters and telegrams, and that he was delighted to think that the whole country was interested in his Endeavour.

Newport was astir early this morning, yachts, steamers, trains, and cars arriving hourly, and the scene was one of the liveliest ever witnessed in the town.

Extreme penalties were promised anyone approaching too near the yachts during to-day's and subsequent races. They will be arrested, fined $100 and forbidden to leave the harbour during the races.

Mr. Charles Havemeyer, of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club, was the American observer aboard the Endeavour, while Sir Ralph Hore was the British observer on board the Rainbow.

WET DAY PRESAGED.

At 8.30 this morning the weather was sunny, but shortly after the sky began to cloud over, presaging a wet day. There was no wind over the harbour, but it was learned that the sea was choppy outside.

Endeavour was the first out, being towed by a tender. This was the first time since her arrival that she did not sail under her own power.

Before sailing out Mr. Vanderbilt, Rainbow's skipper, said "Rainbow is ready, we have done everything in our power, and the rest remains with nature. I trust the weather will be kind."

Mr. Sopwith said "I regard this as any other race. I have made more preparations, perhaps, but so have the Americans. It is much easier to lose than to win, just the same as when you are finishing it is much easier to make excuses for the fishes that have got away, than it is to catch them."

It was decided that the course should be 15 miles to windward from the starting point south-east, to a point off No Man's Land, and return. The yachts cross the starting line at 4.45 p.m. British summer time. (11.45 p.m. Hongkong time).

RACE BEGINS.

Rainbow led slightly from the start, both yachts tacking to the starboard. Tom Sopwith kept the Endeavour pointed as high as possible, drawing level. After 10 minutes it appeared that the Endeavour had about two boat-lengths' lead.

Both vessels were doing better than six knots. At noon Endeavour fell back slightly, and the Rainbow was now pointing higher. Both vessels kept on the starboard tack, racing close together.

The Rainbow appeared slightly faster, and continuing to lead, was a quarter of a mile to the windward of Endeavour, who was an eighth of a mile behind, at 5.20 p.m. British summer time.

At 6.30 p.m. the race was exceedingly close, the Rainbow then appearing to have a lead of between 90 to 60 seconds.

The Endeavour was tacking rather slowly, and both yachts were pointing about the same.

A CLOSE RACE.

After three to four miles both vessels tacked to starboard, waiting for the other to come about. Rainbow tacked to port and Endeavour, speeding ahead, to hold a slight lead. At 6.50 p.m. though Rainbow was pointing higher and soon appeared to regain the advantage.

The judge on the Express Yacht said it was difficult to judge which of the competitors was in the lead at this stage.

At 6 p.m. the race was as close as ever, with Rainbow appearing to be in better fettle. Both were holding a port tack, with similar sails except for Endeavour's big Genoa jib, which did not allow her to point as high as the American defender.

In 6 p.m. the race was as close as ever, with Rainbow appearing to be in better fettle. Both were holding a port tack, with similar sails except for Endeavour's big Genoa jib, which did not allow her to point as high as the American defender.

By hoisting the stay sail at 5.50 p.m. the Endeavour seemed to pick up speed. Immediately afterwards they lowered the Genoa, and proceeded under a double-clewed jib, main sail and stay sail.

The yachts proceeded on a starboard tack at 5.58 p.m. and then went to port, Endeavour's quicker filled sails allowing her to gain ground. Rainbow jib fluttering in the wind for several seconds before it belled out.

HALF WAY REACHED.

Rainbow reached the halfway point at 7.45 p.m. with the challenger two minutes behind, the official time between the yachts at the turn being two minutes forty seconds.

The only flaw in the race at this stage was the lack of a good wind but such as there was increased after the turn, enabling Endeavour to draw nearer, the wind filling up her main sails and small sails more quickly.

However at 7.14 p.m. Vanderbilt was a quarter of a mile ahead of the grimly struggling challenger.

President Roosevelt, aboard the Aspers Yacht, watched the contest keenly.

Six minutes after the turn, Rainbow hoisted the balloon spinnaker, Endeavour hoisting a ventilated spinnaker, muffed the hoisting and lost valuable ground. There appeared to be something wrong with the pulleys but experts considered the spinnaker was too large, as compared with Rainbow's which was used to the best advantage. Finally, after persevering with the ventilated spinnaker, Endeavour caught the extra wind but the race had slowed down so much that the yachts hardly appeared to be moving.

RAINBOW'S BIG LEAD.

The question at this stage was whether the Rainbow could finish within the stipulated five and a half hours time limit. Rainbow appeared a certain winner if she could cover the course within the five and a half time limit and nothing unforeseen happened. She was about a mile solemnly told that he was on no account to lift the ball again. Cox is now a very useful batsman, but he is not the batsman that nature intended him to be.

Last season Washbrook, a Lancashire youth of under twenty, scored 152 against Surrey in his second match. It was essentially the innings of a natural hitter of rare endowments. The hook shot applied to balls little short of a length brought him a big proportion of his runs. But he was warned that such tactics could only succeed once in a blue moon. Like a dutiful lad he listened to grandfatherly advice, dropped his natural strokes, and proceeded to get out lbw, with startling quickness. No one hears of him now. And the case of Washbrook is only one among many.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTS.

Endeavour Potentially as Fast As Rainbow.

Newport, Sept. 16. The New York Times says the Rainbow was handled by Vanderbilt in his usual skilful manner. Sopwith and his amateurs did not do so well.

The Journal declares that Vanderbilt caught Sopwith napping at the start and held the advantage so gained until the end, the start cost Sopwith the race, for Vanderbilt got the windward position which he never lost.

Weather conditions made a comparison of the boats most difficult, and it is impossible to predict the results of the other races.

Sopwith is given every credit for the courage to sail his own race. His ability was greater than that exhibited in many previous contests.

Other experts say that the Endeavour is potentially as fast as the Rainbow and that any conclusions drawn from the result of the first race are most likely to be false.

Both skippers complained about being upset by aeroplanes flying overhead.

Sopwith said his amateur crew gave splendid service.

Vanderbilt admitted that the Endeavour was very fast and gave him a great race.

Cornelius Vanderbilt said, "The Endeavour showed us something."

It is generally agreed that if the Endeavour gets a good breeze, she will do far better.—Reuter.

There was little change in the position at 9.10 p.m., though Endeavour had made a very slight gain. Ten miles had still to be sailed before the time limit expired—and only 55 minutes left!

Rainbow downed her parachute spinnaker and ran up the smaller one in exceedingly quick time. A minute later the challenger lowered her ventilated spinnaker.

Rainbow hoisted the Genoa jib, whereupon Endeavour followed suit, but with less advantage, losing considerable ground in a slow and costly operation.

Racing against time, Rainbow drew away, under new rig, from the English vessel, which did not seem to make speed even with her sails set.

ENDEAVOUR OUTSAILED.

It was obvious at this juncture that the English hope was outtailed both ways and beaten every time in sail manipulation.

Half a mile from the finish Rainbow lost her chance when the time limit expired and "No Contest" was declared. The Endeavour was a mile from the finishing line.

In a last desperate effort Rainbow, with five minutes left, had unfurled her spinnaker to cram all speed into the last stretch. Her failure caused deep disappointment at the unsatisfactory result of the race. Hardly a cheer was raised at the finish.

On the day's sailing it was evident that the American boat was better, both windward and leeward.

The British amateur crew were out manoeuvred in their slow handling of the sails, in which department they were beaten every time by their rivals.

The result is considered to be a good augury for the Cup holders' chances.

Many critics consider that for the next race, Sopwith should change the ventilated spinnaker, which had proved so troublesome for a spinnaker resembling that used by the Rainbow.—Reuter.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

DAY FOR ALICE MEMORIAL INSTITUTION

Hospital Sunday was observed at the Union Church, Hongkong, yesterday, when the speaker at the morning service was Dr. Annie Sydenham, M.B.E., L.N.C.P., of the Resident Medical and Surgical Staff of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals. At the evening service the preacher was the Rev. E. G. Powell. Offerings throughout the day were in aid of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals.

An appeal for $200,000 is being made in connection with the rebuilding of a portion of the present hospital building. Already about $100,000 has been contributed. In connection with the Robert Morrison Centenary it is hoped to raise sufficient money at least to endow a ward in the new building.

The Hongkong Union Church is actively connected with the livelihood of this great institution, also the Territories Evangelisation Society, and each year sets aside a Sunday, and the offerings for that day go towards the furtherance of the work of the hospital.

EVASION OF TAXES.

FURTHER CHARGES AGAINST ANDREW MELLON

Washington, Sept. 16. Charging fraud, by way of fictitious stock sales, the United States Treasury has demanded that Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, and one of America's richest men, pay an income tax assessment, plus a penalty, on his 1931 earnings, totalling $3,075,103.—United Press.

According to Reuter, the quarrel between Andrew Mellon and the U.S. Treasury was renewed during the week-end, when the Government filed claims against Mellon amounting to over $6,000,000. The Tax Appeal Board will hear the case.

Interviewed to-day, Mr. Mellon declared that the Treasury's position was astounding. They were attempting to try before a Civil Tribunal an issue which had been settled by a Grand Jury at Pittsburgh in May. He asserted that the allegations had been made to save the Treasury's face.

It will be recalled that in May of this year, the Department of Justice began investigations of charges that Mellon had evaded payment of income tax totalling several million dollars on a stock transaction and that, while Secretary of the Treasury, he had made illegal refunds of $22,000,000 to shipping companies.

GOVERNMENT WIN

DESPITE LABOUR GAIN IN AUSTRALIAN ELECTIONS

Melbourne, Sept. 16. As an outcome of the Federal elections, which were held yesterday, the Lyons Government will retain office, but only with the co-operation of the United Country Party, the absolute majority gained at the 1931 elections being wiped out.

Although the 1931 elections resulted in an absolute U. A. P. majority, the Government was composed as the result of a U.A.P.-U.C.P. coalition. The position now is virtually as it was before Saturday, although stronger U.C.P. Cabinet representation will possibly result.

When counting concluded at midnight, the position of the parties was as follows:

United Australia Party	28
United Country Party	14
Federal Labour Party	16
State (N.S.W.) Labour	8

Eight seats remain doubtful.

A feature of the elections was the gain of additional seats by the N.S.W. State Labour Party, the breakaway movement organised at the last elections by Mr. J. T. Lang, former Premier of New South Wales.

All the Douglas Credit candidates and Communists were defeated, many of them losing their deposits. Party leaders, including the Prime Minister, Mr. J. A. Lyons, the Federal Treasurer, Dr. Earle Page, the leader of the Opposition, Mr. J. H. Scullin, and Mr. J. A. Bessely, were re-elected.

The composition of the Federal Parliament after the last elections, held on December 18, 1931, was as follows:

United Australia Party	37
United Country Party	16
Federal Labour Party	14
State (N.S.W.) Labour	5
Independents	3

ment of Justice began investigations of charges that Mellon had evaded payment of income tax totalling several million dollars on a stock transaction and that, while Secretary of the Treasury, he had made illegal refunds of $22,000,000 to shipping companies.

PRISONER'S DEATH.

VERDICT OF NATURAL CAUSES RETURNED BY JURY

A verdict of death by natural causes, due to pulmonary tuberculosis, was returned by a jury at a Coroner's inquest conducted by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, into the death of Lau Hing-yuet, 28, a prisoner who died at the Victoria Gaol at 1.10 a.m. on September 14.

The jury comprised Messrs. A. L. S. Read (foreman), H. M. Remedios and H. R. Semmlink.

Harold Barrett, chief warder of the Victoria Gaol, said that the deceased prisoner, No. 200, was sentenced to undergo five years hard labour on October 18, 1933, for robbery by two or more. He was admitted to the prison hospital on August 4, 1934, and died at 1.10 p.m. on September 14. He was on industrial hard labour until his sickness.

Dr. L. D. Pringle, medical officer of Victoria Gaol, said that when the prisoner was admitted his condition was classified as fair. He did not complain of any serious sickness until August 4, when he had a severe hæmorrhage from the lung. He was immediately sent to hospital. Bacteriological examination showed the presence of pulmonary tuberculosis. His condition very rapidly became worse, and tuberculous broncho-pneumonia developed. He died at 1.10 p.m. on September 14.

Dr. Pringle said that he held a post mortem on Saturday morning and found very extensive pulmonary tuberculosis in both lungs. Death was due to pulmonary tuberculosis. He was in hospital in July for a sculp wound, but there was then no indication of pulmonary tuberculosis. There was less exposure to infection in prison than outside.

ANNIVERSARY OF MUKDEN INCIDENT

Tientsin, Sept. 16. In view of the approach of September 18, the anniversary of the Mukden Incident, which led to the Japanese military occupation of Manchuria and Jehol, the Chinese police authorities in the Luantung districts have tightened their vigilance against the activities of the treacherous elements, who are reported to be attempting to renew agitation in the Kailan Mining districts.—Central News Agency.

FILMLAND NEWS

British "Invasion" of American Market

SELLING DIRECT

The biggest campaign on behalf of British film in America which has yet been undertaken is announced by the Gaumont-British Film Corporation.

The Corporation has decided to initiate immediately the most spectacular enterprise undertaken by any British film company since talking pictures began by creating a machine for the distribution of British talking pictures throughout the United States.

For this purpose Mr. Jeffrey Bernard, general manager of the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation, is sailing for New York to-day.

This enterprise means that British talking pictures will be sold direct to American cinema, in exactly the same way as American talking pictures are sold by their producers to British cinemas.

Mr. Jeffrey Bernard will have to create at least 15 distribution centres in America and will have to rent approximately 30 key theatres in big cities, beginning with New York.

The first five films he will offer will be "New Suss," "Chu Chin Chow," "Little Friend," "Man of Aran," and "The Iron Duke."

The preliminary work for the creation of this machine for the distribution of British films in America will cost £200,000.

In announcing the details of this enterprise Mr. Charles M. Wolf, joint managing director of the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation, stated:

"We are going to boost British films from one coast of America to the other.

"The difficulty is, of course, the language, but we got used to theirs, and they must get used to ours. We shall teach them how to speak English, just as they have taught us to speak American."

"As a beginning, we have signed George Arliss on a contract for two more films than he had originally agreed to make in Britain. Next year he comes back to this country to star in two British productions.

"We are going all out for the best artists and directors, and we are prepared to pay American salaries to get them. Most probably we shall have to pay more to compete with Hollywood.

"Whether Americans will like such essentially English artists as Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls, or Cicely Courtneidge and Jack Hulbert, is difficult to predict...but we are out to make them.

"We shall adhere strictly to the British character, and make no American concessions."

TWO AMBITIOUS PICTURES.

Production has just begun at the British and Dominion studios at Boreham Wood on two of the biggest pictures in this year's schedule. These are "Brewster's Millions," starring Jack Buchanan, and the screen adaptation of Savoir's "The Milky Way," which is so far untitled.

"Brewster's Millions," which has had the most extensive preparations of any Buchanan subject yet made, has a cast which, in addition to the star, includes Lili Damita. There will be dance sequences in which a chorus of 150 girls will take part.

A unit has been making exterior shots in Paris for "The Milky Way" with Sir Cedric Hardwicke. The Continental star, Marie Glory, has had a busy time in making preparations for her British talkie debut. On one day she was acting on the Berlin stage, on the next she had flown to London to have

Everyone knows, or should know, that lettuce is rich in iron and is, therefore, valuable for the blood. If you eat plenty of lettuce you will improve and cleanse your blood, and consequently clear your skin and complexion.

But lettuce can be used externally, as well as internally, as a beauty aid. Lettuce is splendid for removing sunburn, and the juice of the lettuce leaf is said to have healing properties. Pour a quart of boiling water over half a peck of full-grown outside lettuce leaves. After about ten minutes draw off the water and chop the leaves finely. Put them into a soft, clean cloth and wring out all the juice that can be extracted from them into a porcelain-lined pan and boil it for four minutes. There should be about four table-spoonsful of green liquor. Then take half an ounce each of white wax and spermaceti and four ounces of oil of almonds. Melt them together in a jar placed in a saucepan of hot water. Stir the mixture occasionally, and when quite smooth add the lettuce juice and mix thoroughly. Pour it into small porcelain jars with screw tops, and use it when required as a lotion for removing sunburn.

dress fittings for the film, and on the day following she was with the film unit in Paris, again travelling by air.

CICELY COURTNEIDGE

Production has just been started on Cicely Courtneidge's new comedy, "Schooldays," under the direction of Albert de Courville.

Principal parts in this picture are to be played by William Gargan, Max Miller, Mary Lawson, Charles Mortimer, Judy Kelly, Peggy Simpson, Peggy Blyth, Gillian Maude, Alma Taylor, and Cicely Courtneidge. Miss Suzanne Lenglen, the famous tennis star, will also appear in the picture.

Judy Kelly is the young Australian actress who has already appeared with success in a number of British films during the past two years. Alma Taylor will be remembered for her work in silent films in this country. William Gargan is of course, the well-known Hollywood player who has been signed up by Gaumont British for this picture. He appeared with Joan Crawford in "Rain."

FILM RECORDS TO BE MADE

London, Sept. 11.
Movie cameras will soon be making lasting records of those primitive races whose extinction within the next two or three generations is feared.

At the first International Congress of Anthropology and Ethnological Sciences, which has met in London, it was decided to send out special expeditions equipped with movie cameras to make film records of life among tribes which are believed to be dying out.

It was also decided to create a central film library in London with branches in all the principal centres of the world, where such valuable records can be kept. In addition to the special expeditions, travellers, explorers, traders, colonists, planters and others who make films of life among primitive peoples will be urged to send copies to this library of dying races.

The special permanent committee set up to study the question of compiling such movie records plans also to hunt up material for the library out of old news reels, tropical films and the junk heaps and store cupboards of the film world.—United Press.

BUILT ON GOLD

TOWN MAY BECOME MINES.

Kalgoorlie and Coolgardie, the famous "golden" twin towns of Western Australia which have already produced more than £100,000,000 worth of gold, since the rush of 1892-93, are threatened with, at any rate, partial demolition, because, it is now believed, they themselves are built on a rich reef, an extension of the "golden mile."

Experts predict revolutionary changes there, says Austral News, and mining men are inundating the warden's court with applications for leases and permits to prospect areas on which now stand tramway sheds, hotels, and many private houses. Schemes for diamond drilling on town site areas are already in hand.

LOOPING THE LOOP.

A new record of "looping the loop" in an engineless plane has been accomplished by Herr Kuhn, of the Danzig Flying Corps.

Occupying his seat in the new Danzig engineless plane "Arthur Groser" (of the "Grunau Baby II" type), he had himself hoisted to a height of 2,100 metres by an engine machine. After being released, he "looped the loop" 85 times, thus breaking the previous record of 75 loopings.

The fifteenth century, is again sheltering a sailing ship—this time loaded with pirates for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Treasure Island," the Robert Louis Stevenson classic, now being filmed under the direction of Victor Fleming.

A small bay near the Isthmus located on the northern end of the island has been converted into a harbour to serve as anchorage for the "Hispaniola."

On board, a complete miniature studio has been placed in operation.

Members of the cast, including Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Otto Kruger, Lewis Stone, Nigel Bruce, and nearly a hundred character players have converted the ship's cabins into dressingrooms, make-up and wardrobe departments,

MYSTERY OF SEA DEEPS PROBED BY SCIENCE

UNKNOWN WORLD REACHED BY BATHYSPPHERE
WHEN PROFESSORS GO EXPLORING

By E. G. Boulenger

Some forty years ago Mr. H. G. Wells described in a short story how an intrepid oceanographer descended to the ocean abyss employing a hollow steel sphere fitted with a special breathing apparatus and observation windows.

This fantasy has come to pass in actual fact, for within the past week Dr. William Beebe of the American Natural History Museum's Tropical Research Station, has descended off the Bermuda coast with his companion, Mr. Otis Barton, who took film pictures, in a similar steel chamber, termed a "bathysphere," to a depth of 3,000 feet. The divers state that this depth of more than half a mile would have been easily exceeded, but their object was scientific observation, and not mere record-breaking.

Dr. Beebe, in his latest communication, describes how he and his companion took film pictures of the ocean depths, reporting at the same time all they saw to a secretary in a yacht above. Fragments from the report refer to "fish looking like shooting stars gone mad," and the account generally indicated a world no one has previously been privileged to see.

The sphere's searchlight attracted weird and wonderful fish, which dashed themselves against the windows as do birds and moths against the lighthouse lamp-chamber.

"THE BATHYSPPHERE"

The "Bathysphere" is, briefly, a globular steel case just large enough to contain two men and a camera. A view of the world without is afforded by three windows of fused quartz three inches thick and eight inches in diameter. These windows give a clearer view than glass, and can, moreover, withstand a pressure of many tons. The sphere is only big enough to permit of a

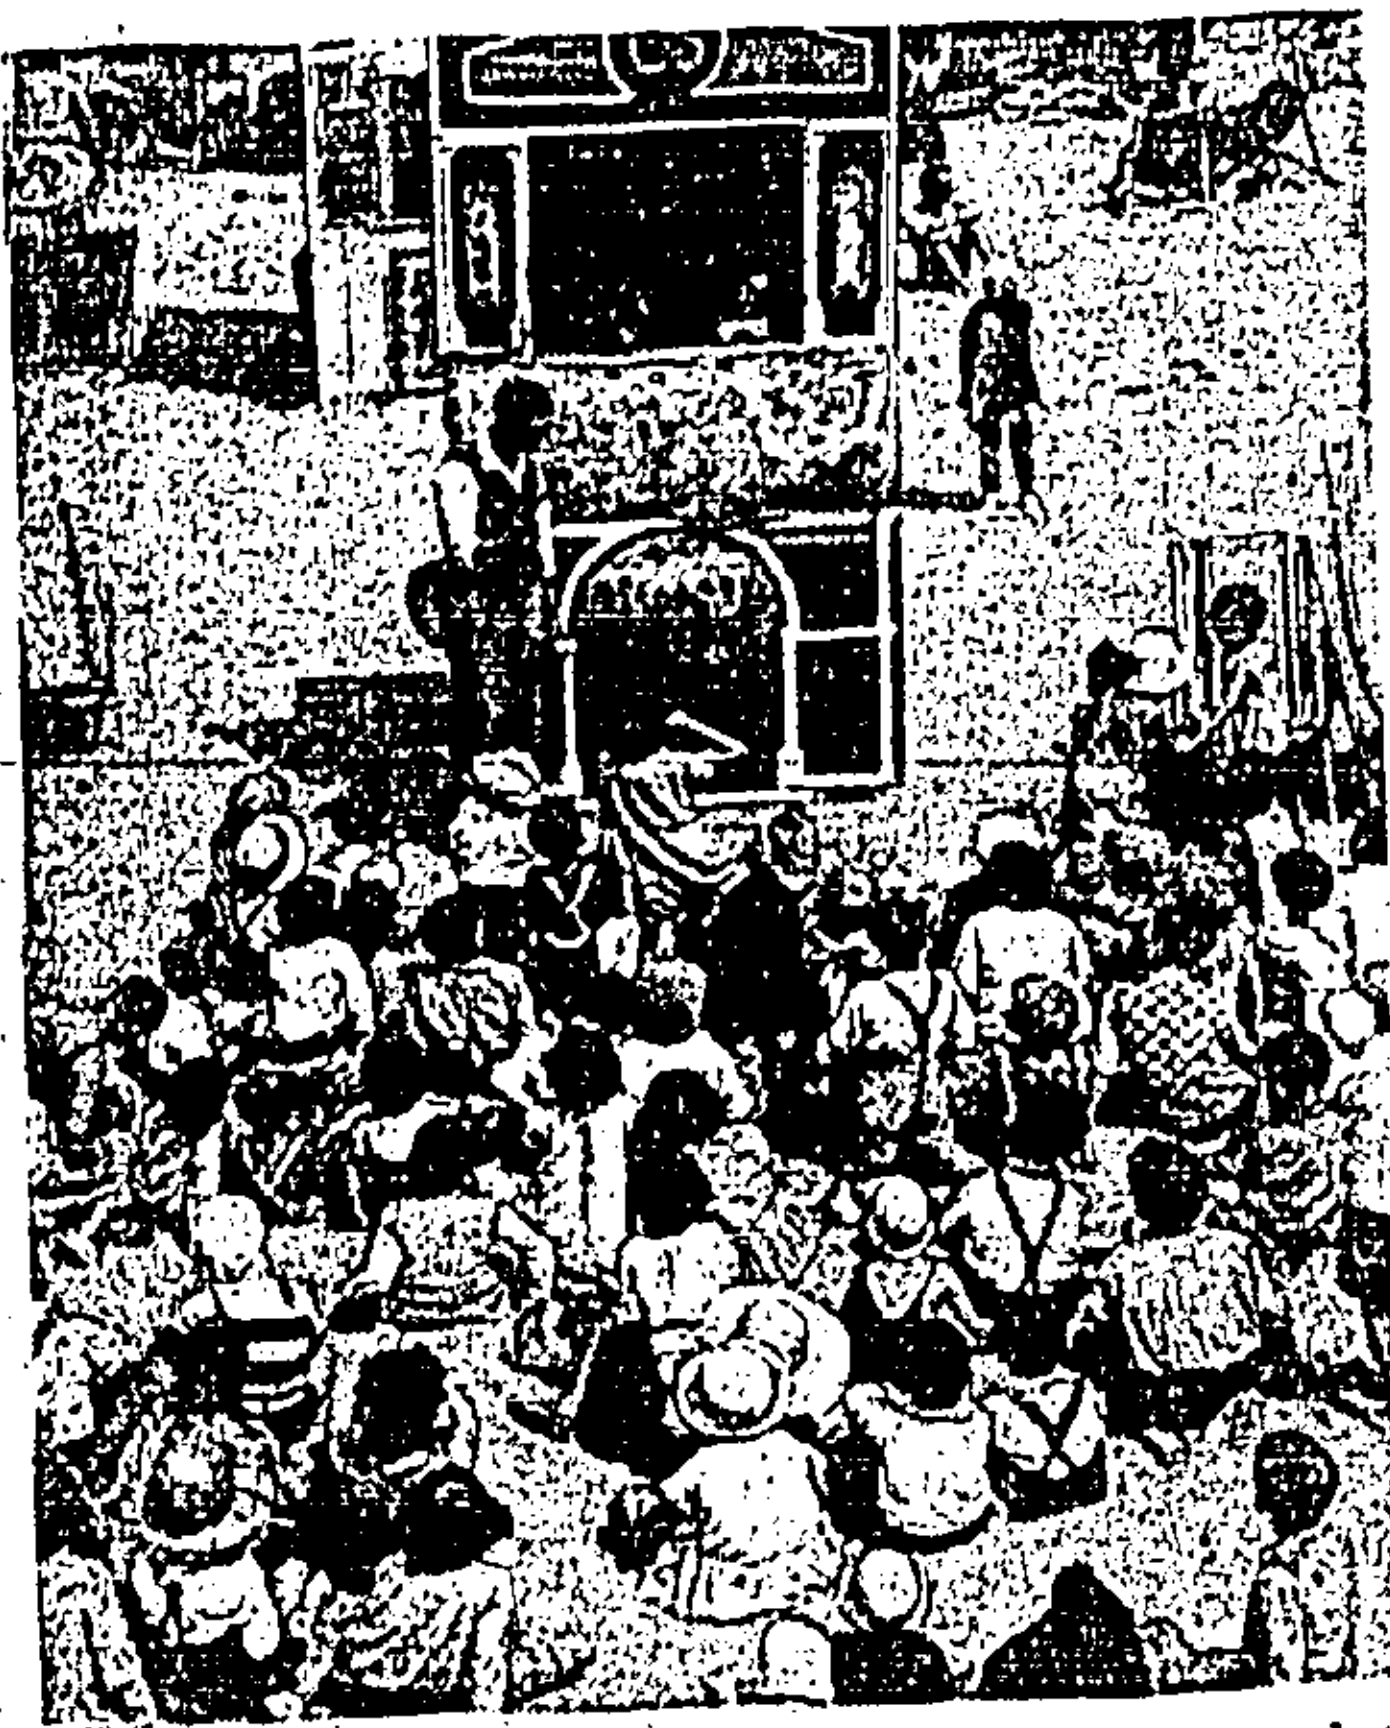

INNUMERABLE LIGHTS.

At greater depths Stygian darkness shut down upon the awful stillness of the deep, yet a darkness pierced by innumerable lights. Uncountable swarms of minute molluscs, known as Pleuropoda, or "Sea Moths," flittered round the sphere in phorescent clouds. Fish in varying forms, and bearing light organs of innumerable kinds, augmented a world crowded with life and infinity of shapes. The prevalent colouring of these creatures appeared to be black or vivid red; the latter being the dominant hue of most of the crustaceans.

Life in the abyss would appear to be as crowded as in the surface waters. Many of the fish common to the Continental shelf are in the depths attuned to their peculiar environment in special ways. The normal angler fish, for example, wave its lure in vain in utter darkness. To meet this exigency, therefore, the fleshy lure, which is attached to the end of a rodlike fin, is transformed into a luminous bulb, and this attracts other fishes to their doom.

Not only the waters, but the abyss floor itself has a large population, and since the sea bed is often of a oozy and yielding nature special adaptations are required for the creatures frequenting it. Many prawns and crabs walk upon this shifting floor on high stilted legs. Many of the inhabitants are pursued by bottom-feeding sharks which illuminate the sea bed by means of innumerable lights upon their under surfaces.

It is the use of lights, indeed, which constitute one of the greatest marvels of this inky world. The common cuttlefish of the abyss, for example, carries on its body twenty-two globular light organs—two ruby red, two sky blue, one ultramarine, and the remainder squinting posture, and is entered by a manhole which is firmly screwed into position when the interior is occupied. In action the "bathysphere" is lowered by means of a steel cable, and communication with those on the ship is held by means of a telephone. The possibilities of such a contrivance are obvious.

Summer is pretty well finished in England now, but the Punch and Judy shows at the seaside resorts are always popular as long as children are on the beaches, as here, at Margate.

The trained observer, in looking out on the ocean bed, can give at first hand accurate descriptions of innumerable matters which would otherwise be only dimly guessed at as the result of trawlings. Too often specimens gathered from depths of more than 2,500 feet come to the surface damaged beyond identification owing to the sudden relaxation of the enormous pressure to which they are normally subjected. The movements of such creatures and their general ways of life must, therefore, be matters of conjecture, but the "bathysphere" opens up new vistas in the realm of deep sea exploration.

Dr. Beebe's "bathysphere" is an improved model of the first conception built seven years ago, and which was first tried out off the coral reefs of Non Such Island, Bermuda, in comparatively shallow water. As time progressed ever-increasing depths were explored, and interesting revelations of the waterworld resulted. It was found that at a depth of 100 feet visibility was excellent, but at 200 feet the orange faded from the spectrum, and at 300 the water was of an white or yellow. Another deep sea squid stores its light in the form of two masses not unlike tooth-paste or artist's colour, and under stimulus these substances are squeezed into the water, where they diffuse in a cloud of greenish light. The ordinary ink screen so effective in shallow water would naturally be of little use where all is darkness, and it is interesting, therefore, to note this singular adaptation which in the deeps is also shared by certain prawns.

A DEEP SEA "LINER."

Some of the forms known are quite inexplicable. One of the most baffling has just been discovered at a depth of 1,000 feet. The creature is a fish which begins life with its eyes planted on stalks half the length of its body. On reaching maturity and a length of 14 inches, the eyes assume a normal position, and the fish then develops huge teeth, a complex barbel, and a row of light organs along its body which make it look like a miniature liner with every porthole illuminated.

Certain small fishes less than a quarter the size of this miniature dragon are without teeth, and bear a huge light upon either cheek. At first they were thought to be the larvae of the stalk-eyed creatures, but they have now been identified as males, and are known to lead parasitic lives on their relatively gigantic consorts. Mr. Beebe in his latest communication states that "every dive convinced us that the true idea of deep sea life from drag-nets." Whilst none will deny the value of his contribu-

TRAINING OF CHILDREN

Too Much Culture
Not Good

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mrs. Bird arrived in a flutter of chiffon and a flutter of words. That settled it. This meant that the new Millers were accepted in the new town, for Mrs. Bird was social arbiter.

She was very nice but very superficial. Little points of etiquette and your type of furniture settled in Mrs. Bird's mind whether or not you belonged to the elect. It was a sort of try-out call and Mrs. Miller knew it.

Lucy was most likely to be the straw that would gum up the whole works. Lucy was ten. She was a tousle-headed tomboy and she said startling things.

But Lucy had been drilled, "If you come in and say, 'I'll tell the world,' or 'You're telling me,' I'll ruin you," spoke her mother. "And for goodness sake, learn to make a decent curtsy. They're still doing it in this town. Oh, shake hands if she offers to. Sit down for ten minutes, keep your mouth shut and your feet and hands still and say, 'Yes, Mrs. Bird,' or 'No, Mrs. Bird,' and don't stare. Got it?"

CHANCE OF MANNERS.

Lucy shouted, "I'll tell the world. Don't worry—I'll be apple-pie."

"And don't giggle. She uses a lorgnette and she says 'cawn' and 'wahhah.' Now mind."

Well—Lucy minded. She was not Lucy but somebody else. She was a good little actress. Everything went off very well. And as Mrs. Bird left she said, "I want Lucy to come over and see Oriol. There are so few cultured children for her to play with. I am very careful. You must feel the same way."

In that town it happened that every mother, in order to keep in with the rich Birds and have their children any they were friends of Oriol's, tried to mold their youngsters' manners after those of the artificial child. Not that it hurt them much to get some real manners, but this is not the end of the story.

Oriol was artificial. She concealed her real self under an unreal exterior that one sensed was untrue and forced.

In five years every girl of her set was a "prim Priscilla" who gushed commonplace nothings, who over-accented politeness and hid frank and real personality so constantly it was a complete bore to talk to any of them.

TOO MUCH CULTURE.

Then Mrs. Miller began to worry. Her nice little Lucy was becoming so superficial she no longer knew her. Once she said, "Lucy, I'd give anything to hear you say 'Damn it all,' or 'You're crazy,' or something natural once in a while. Be yourself. No one can stand any of your crowd. You'll all die old maids. Butter tongues—all of you."

Television machine in action at the Nazi ceremony in Berlin when Herr Hitler spoke to a million Nazis.

But Oriol went to a certain grand young ladies' school, and the rest, of course, had to go, too. They came home "poised." "Yes, Mrs. So and So," "No, Mrs. So and So." It became a polite but deadly chant.

When Lucy was nineteen she was a complete sphinx and a stranger to her own family. And then Mrs. Miller went. "What a mess I've made of her. I wish I'd brought her up in a mining camp in overalls. I've buried my real girl forever."

NAZIS TRAINING SAAR LEGION

READY TO MARCH
OVER FRONTIER

Saarbrücken, Sept. 2.

Germany is training a special Saar Legion, similar to the recently disbanded Austrian Legion, ready to launch into the Saar.

It is composed of young Saarlanders aged between 18 and 25, who are given a semi-military training in German labour camps "befitting them for the struggle in the Saar."

In addition, a special group of air pilots has been trained in the Saar itself under the aegis of apparently neutral sport associations. These disclosures are made by the Saar Governing Commission, which publishes documents recently confiscated during a police raid on the German Front headquarters in Saarbrücken.

The Governing Commission has hitherto allowed Saarlanders to take part in voluntary labour service in Germany, but on the grounds of the material now discovered such participation is in future to be illegal.

The documents disclose that in October, 1933, the Prussian Government entrusted the Reich Voluntary Labour Service Association with the task of training 10,000 young Saarlanders in German labour camps. They were to be retained in Germany till the plebiscite in 1935 or until such time "as they should be recalled to the Saar."

The original figure of 10,000 has been exceeded by 6,000. The organisation in the Saar of the voluntary labour service is in constant communication with the Secret Police—in Berlin. Saarlanders who give unfavourable reports of conditions in Germany and in the labour camps are denounced in Berlin and in some cases sent to concentration camps in Germany.

COLUMBIA NAVY RECRUITS

BRITISH SAILORS
DISILLUSIONED

MIGHT HAVE HAD TO FIGHT

Nine British ex-Naval ratings who in February agreed to serve for two years in the Colombian Navy returned to England recently wearing the uniform of the Royal Navy with cap ribbons bearing the names of the destroyers Antioquin and Caldas.

They landed at Plymouth on the arrival of the liner Simon Bolivar from the West Indies and the rest of the party of 150 will be returning shortly.

"We are fed up," one man with three good conduct stripes declared. "We expected a square deal and did not get it."

"We went out purely in an advisory capacity to assist in training the Colombian sailors, but on arrival we were told we should have to fight if necessary. Our King's Regulations were read over to us every day, and we had to abide by them and also by the regulations of the Colombian Navy."

"Our contracts stated we should be paid in English money, but we were given foreign currency, which was worth considerably less, so we are all cancelling our contracts and coming home."

"They wanted to dilute me and tried to remove the good conduct badges I had earned in our Navy," another man declared.

The departure of the men for the Colombian navy caused a scene in the House of Commons on May 30. When Mr. Geoffrey Mander, Liberal M.P. for Enniskerry, Hampshire, protested against their enlistment he was accused by the First Lord of the Admiralty (Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell) of holding up England to international obloquy, and a meeting of Liberal M.P.s

described as a gross Ministerial insult.

ANIMAL HEROES GIVEN MEDALS

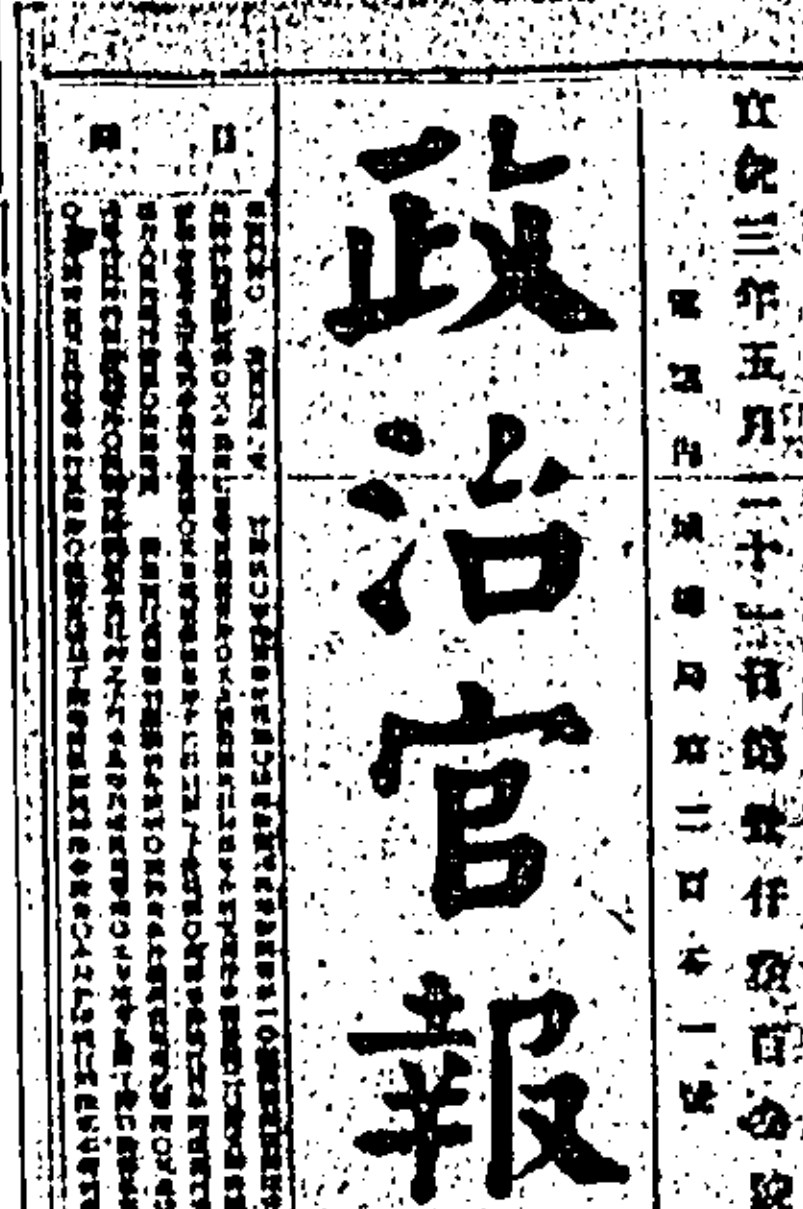

BODO, THE ENEMY
OF REBELS

Vienna, Sept. 10.

The Vienna Society for the Protection of Animals have decided to award medals to animals that have saved human lives.

The first animal to be thus decorated will be a small mongrel dog from Farnitz, near Graz, which saved a small child from drowning. Another recipient will be Bodo, a German sheep-dog, now a police dog. During a rising, his master, who is a police-inspector, was surrounded by the rebels and threatened. However, Bodo bit everybody who menaced his master.

Some weeks ago Bodo's master had an opportunity of saving his faithful dog's life. Bodo jumped into the Danube just when a big paddle-steamer was approaching. His master, in full uniform, jumped into the water and saved the dog from being drawn into the paddles. Another dog awaiting decoration is the police-dog Prinz, which can detect the smell of birdlime. He jumps at those who carry it, and has thus saved many birds from traps and death.

AIR RACE PROMOTER'S

Sir MacPherson Robertson, the Australian millionaire chocolate manufacturer, who has already given £15,000, a gold cup valued £600, and gold medals as prizes for the London to Melbourne air race has now given another £500 as prize for a Melbourne to Hobart (Tasmania) race, to be flown after the main race.

This brings the number of "side" races in Australia, for which competitors in the main race are eligible, to six, says Austral News. Prize money amounts to approximately £6,000.

Vienna, Sept. 1.

The villa and property of Dr. Rintelen, the man whom the Nazi rebels of July 25 proclaimed as the successor to Dr. Dollfuss, the murdered Chancellor, have been confiscated.

With the money standing to his credit in Styrian banks, the property will be used by the Government towards paying for the damage caused by the rising. of the villa and property, which at Graz, amounts to £200,000.

RESERVATIONGeneva, Sept. 16.
The Soviet has decided to enter the League with one important reservation.Having accepted the invitation to join the League, and having consented to submit all future disputes to the League International Court, Moscow explicitly refused to submit to arbitration all conflicts which arose prior to Russia's actual admission.This means that the hopes of governments desiring to exploit the Kremlin's adherence to the League for the purpose of forcing Russia to face an arbitral tribunal on long-standing disputes have been crushed.Since Articles 12 and 13 of the League Covenant leave it open to States to submit their disputes to arbitration or judicial settlement, the Soviet considers it necessary to make clear its opinion that such methods should not be applicable to conflicts regarding questions arising before the Soviet's entry into the League of Nations.The French Delegation early this morning telephoned the numerous delegations requesting them to visit M. Barthou's headquarters to sign the invitation to Russia.The first to sign was M. Bar-thou, the second Mr. Anthony Eden, after which 20 others appended their names. By 11 a.m.
M. Barthou had received the assurances of 33 delegates of their readiness to sign immediately, a two-thirds majority requiring 35, which is believed easily obtainable.The invitation will be despatched to M. Litvinoff early this afternoon. M. Litvinoff's reply will be transmitted forthwith, so the Soviet's formal entry will probably be on Tuesday or Wednesday.—

The invitations to Russia were signed by 30 League members.In addition, four Scandinavian ing unanimously confirmed its previous unofficial decision to give Russia a permanent seat on the Enthusiasm in Warsaw over express doubts as to whether the broadside fired by Colonel Beck, Polish Foreign Minister, into the League Assembly on Thursday, really helps Poland's demands for the removal of injustices which she claims the Minorities Treaties impose on "inferior States."Prominent jurists deplore the methods adopted by Poland. They point out that these methods will bring Poland into conflict with Britain, France and Italy over the inviolability of the Treaty of Versailles—a matter vastly greater in importance, even for Poland, than the Minorities Treaties.Although the minorities in Poland number 10,000,000 out of a population of 33,000,000, jurists point out that the Treaties, in practice, never proved unbearable, in view of the friendly atmosphere at Geneva.While action over the Minorities question is entirely unconnected with the Eastern Locarno propo-

Admission on Tuesday.

Geneva, Sept. 16.
The telegram inviting the Soviet to join the League was yes-all the signatures would be af-

BUILDING CLOSED.

PREMISES IN QUEEN'S ROAD
DECLARED DANGEROUSMr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Construction Ministry on Saturday morning, made a closing order against
Nos. 38 and 40 Queen's Road, Central, on an application by Mr. C. B.
Robertson, of the Public Works Department.The order was taken out against Kam Man-king, sub-lessee of the premises, for whom Mr. W. K.
Robinson, of Messrs. Tso & Hodgson, appeared.Mr. Robertson, in the witness box, stated the application was made owing to the dangerous condition of the walls.Mr. Robinson, who opposed the order, admitted his client received the rents.Mr. Hamilton said that the only thing he was concerned with was in keeping the premises closed, as it was in a dangerous condition.Mr. Robertson added they had served notices on the tenants and all had evacuated, except the ground floor tenants.Mr. Hamilton said that it was perfectly obvious that Mr. Robinson difficultly was that he could not go ahead and do what the Building Authority wanted done, because they had no power. Therefore, if he made a closing order it would be in his favour. If there were other owners they could make an objection. The moment he came up and said that the order had been effected to the satisfaction of the Building Authority, he would be prepared to cancel the order.Mr. Robinson agreed, but if the Building Authority was not satisfied with the repairs effected, they would be losing the rents.Mr. Hamilton, making the order, said that his business as a Police
Magistrate was to do a drastic thing, because it was absolutely necessary.
If there was any order subsequently which could be made by him to facilitate matters, he would be prepared to make it with pleasure.

SOME PENALTIES OF DEMOCRACY

A point which is often overlooked by students of world affairs is that democracy's shortcomings have to be accepted along with its benefits. The industrial warfare which has been causing so much trouble in the United States is a case in point. There is, quite naturally, a demand that some way should be found out of upheavals of this kind. Unfortunately, however, the time has yet to come when industrial strife will have become a thing of the past. In one sense, these periodical interruptions of the normal run of life, destructive and costly as they may be, are almost inevitable where democratic ideas hold sway. The facts are better realised when we look abroad to other countries. Russia has no strikes because there is not, strictly speaking, anyone for the workers to strike against except themselves. Technically, at least, they own the country. They cannot have a dispute with the management because they are the management. That is one way to make strikes impossible—to liquidate the employing class. Italy is another land in which strikes are unknown. The Italian worker cannot strike because, if he does, he strikes against a Government which will have no hesitation in coming down on him. He is really a cog in a machine, and in that capacity he takes what is handed him—and likes it. That is another way to prevent strikes—to liquidate the labour movement. Under a democracy, neither of these solutions is possible. There must remain, then, an amount of freedom within which either the employer or the worker can, if he feels justified, indulge in industrial war; and there is no way of making this impossible except by sliding off in the direction of either Fascism or Communism—which, of course, means abandoning democracy. These thoughts reveal the kind of deep water we get into when we talk about making strikes impossible. The strikeless millennium will have to wait until the whole industrial field is pervaded by the justice, the public spirit and the sense of responsibility which are, ultimately, democracy's greatest safeguards.

RECRUITING RUSSIA

Through a lobbying campaign such as was never seen before at Geneva, France, and other sympathetic nations, have succeeded in winning a free road for the entry of Soviet Russia to the League of Nations. In spite of opposition, not the least of which came from the Vatican, and which consequently created a delicate situation outside the political aspects of the case, Russia has apparently been "approved" by the fraternity of nations and her early attendance at the Council table can be anticipated. An understanding has been reached, and the charges that France was attempting to evade or circumvent the League's Sixth Commission, which is supposed to decide whether a country applying for membership has the necessary qualifications, have been forgotten. Russia's warning that Russia's admission, against the will of member nations, might further undermine the prestige of the League, has had no effect. Perhaps the suave diplomacy of M. Litvinoff has helped to counteract opposition.

WORLD REVOLUTION

But there is something yet to remember. An official Russian newspaper recently said that "when the drums of the great Red Army resound and the Russian bayonets are raised, it will be the moment for the liberation of India and China and the dawn of world revolution." Will the Soviet forget these dangerous doctrines when she accepts League membership and promises to strive for the preservation of peace? Will Moscow cease those operations overseas which have been calculated to stir up revolt among the workers of the un-Sovietized world? Unless she does, her attendance at Geneva will provide a most ridiculous anomaly and do more harm than good.

MINORITIES PROBLEM

Poland has announced that she will no longer co-operate with international bodies in the protection of minority populations, and the weight of world opinion, or at least, of the Great Powers, is against her. Baron Aloisi of Italy has pointed out that while there is a possibility of the revision of the Treaty of Versailles, by which Poland is bound to work with other signatories for the welfare of the minorities, revision can only be accomplished by legal methods and existing arrangements must be respected until they are altered with the approval of all. He might have found an analogy with which China is familiar, namely, the Extraterritoriality agreements. Though China may wish to end them, she cannot do so without the consent of other Powers who are joint signatories. Reform cannot be brought about by unilateral action where international agreements are concerned, any more than the party of any legal undertaking can make his contract null and void by refusing to conform. There is international machinery for revision in such matters, just as there is in civil law. The rules of the game must be observed; and for infringement there is a penalty.

WAR ON CRIME

America's war on crime, the federal and state and municipal authorities' campaign to stamp out big business racketeering, has been brought to what some people declare is a successful conclusion. Diamond, Capone, Detroit's Purple Gang, Egan's Rats of St. Louis, million dollar organisations, all of them, are gone. There is only the debris, the little gunmen, left; and they are not a major menace. There remains, however, another battle to be fought, not with machine-guns, and sawed-off shot-guns in back streets and speakeasies, but a shrewdly calculated and strategic contest in which some of the sharpest legal wits will be pitted against each other. The federal government has decided it is time to attack the unscrupulous attorneys who keep criminals out of prison, and will work to purge the country of lawyers who connive at and abet illegal acts. When they have been removed, America will be able to boast that it has crushed the gangster; but at the moment it is much too early for complacency.

POLITE WORDS YOU SHOULD NOT USE

By ROBERT LYND

At irregular intervals a controversy arises in the Press over the use and misuse of words. Purists rush into print to denounce the split infinitive, the use of "compare to" instead of "compare with," and that evergreen monotony (as they think it) "unreliable."

Just at present a lively correspondence is going on in which the modern Englishman is taken to task for the barbarous way in which he mishandles his language. He is particularly censured for the unprecedented recklessness with which he employs nouns as adjectives, as in the phrases "luxury car" and "mystery ship."

It is true that nouns have been employed as adjectives for centuries, and correctly so. "Yorkshire" is an adjective as well as a noun, and no one can object to "Yorkshire pudding" either as a food or as a phrase.

At the same time, it seems absurd to use nouns as adjectives where good adjectives are already in existence. Why, for example, has it become the almost universal custom in recent years to speak of the "England team" in cricket and in other games? "English," and as short a word as "England," and has for centuries been recognised as the correct adjective. I do not think anybody speaks of the "France team" in any sport. It is all very well to use a noun as an adjective when no suitable adjective exists, as in "income-tax form," but the genius of the language demands that when an adjective is already there, it should be given first choice.

The misuse of nouns, however, is not the only sin against the language imputed to the modern Englishman. He is also accused of introducing all kinds of woolly and useless novelties into the language that shock the eye and ear. He has recently, for example, taken enthusiastically to using such adjectives as "carefree," "worthwhile" and "colourful." Reviewers speak of a "colourful narrative" and a "worthwhile book." It may be argued that the fact that thousands of people have adopted these words into their speech is a proof that they were needed. I doubt this, however.

The constant use or misuse of a word does not inevitably mark it as good English. The word "individual" has been misused as a noun for generations, but no authority on English would say that long custom justifies a writer today in speaking of the British agriculturist as "this long-suffering individual"—an example quoted by Fowler. Great writers misused the word freely in the nineteenth century, but good writers seldom do now.

"Phenomenal" and "phenomenally" used in the wrong sense, are sturdy survivors of years of denunciation. Everybody is agreed that to write "phenomenal" meaning "remarkable" or "exceptional," is an abuse of language, and an entirely unnecessary abuse, since there are so many alternatives; but nearly everybody goes on writing it.

It is difficult—indeed, impossible—to say at what point an objectionable word ceases to be objectionable and becomes adopted into the family of good speech. "Mob" and "cab" were once objected to as vulgar abbreviations; but their usefulness in daily speech has outweighed all objections. We have seen in our own time how "cizema" has become good English, while "photo," a much older abbreviation, has never been accepted such. Why? Perhaps because the Victorians were more pedantic than we. Many of them objected even to the abbreviation, "lunch." Some people continue to object. I for my part will continue to write and say "lunch."

As for other words that the authorities tell us not to use, I dislike most of them myself. At the beginning of the century one became impatient of such words as "meticulous," "obsess," "intriguing" and "arresting," partly because everybody used them till one was as tired of them as of last year's music-hall songs and partly because most of them were comparative newcomers to the language and partly because they usually pretended to say more than the writer meant. The great test of the correct use of words is whether the writer uses them vaguely and lazily or whether he means exactly what he says. The chief objection to many vogue-words is that they lead to lazy writing and so to hazy reading.

This suggests that all words are good if they are used with a full sense of their meaning by a good writer. A good writer can turn a neologism or a slang phrase into good English. Not that good writers always write perfect English. It is not from their works that most of the examples of bad grammar are taken against which the grammarians warn us?

At the same time, there is a general consensus of opinion about the words that are good English and those that are not. We may not all agree with Lord Oxford in his dislike of "cope with." We may not share the traditional antipathy to "partake of" in reference to food, though to me, I confess, it is an object of dislike. We may feel that those who wish to expel "reliable" from the English language on the ground that it is an illegitimately formed word are over-zealous. We may fall to see the point of the clergyman's objection to "the dreadful word 'amenities'."

At the same time, in regard to 50 words out of 100, most writers would agree as to whether a word is good English or not. I do not suppose that Dickens was consciously a purist, but even so scrupulous a stylist as Mrs. Meynell was able to discover in his novels only two words which he habitually misused. Unfortunately, if I remember right, she did not tell us what they were.

The fact is, all good writers write in obedience to a tradition while, at the same time, taking liberties with it. Even so, I hope few of them will take the liberty of giving "worthwhile" and "colourful" a permanent place in the English language.

The Very Idea!

THE BUDGET EXPLAINED

By George

GETTING the new angle of the Budget was the job deputed to us over the week-end and frankly, it proved a little beyond us.

The great thing appears to be that seven million reduction in expenditure but when we asked a high Government official why we are going to take this huge amount of grease from the cogs of industry he said: "The truth is we are not taking it out because we couldn't put it in."

"We are absolutely hung up for dough all round and the only reason we are estimating for less is because when our credit is stopped long before we reach the total we had hoped to get through, we shall have so much less to explain away."

With this pessimistic forecast for 1935 he took out an Isle de Perfection cheroot and steamed slowly away.

"But who do you think is going to spend seven million less?" We asked of another official who was smoking a Balkan Sobranie?

"We have all got to make sacrifices to attain the common good," he replied. "Even R.O. rewards will be cut down this year and many of the Government tenants will refrain from paying their rent. This will reduce our income and so we shall spend less."

It was obvious we were getting a great deal nearer to the truth. "But why are you budgeting for a two million deficit?" we queried of another official as he casually extracted our last Gold-flake from his case?

"Well, the fact is," he replied, "that's the only way we can get our hand on the Colony's surplus funds. While they are being hoarded up they remain a temptation to every enterprising mind besides running up a constant storage account. While we're spending it we know it's there and when it's gone we know we've had it. That's our policy."

Following which inspired dissertation on high finance we ran to the Bank and withdrew our last $30.

We weren't going to be stung for storage-charge anyway.

TIMING THE DAVIS CUP

Some Amazing Figures

Below are some figures on the match between F. J. Perry and F. X. Shields in the challenge round of the Davis Cup compiled by Mr. H. M. Abrahams, the Olympic Games athlete.

Mr. Abrahams says he is amazed at the amount of strenuous lawn tennis which can be crowded into a very few seconds. It will be noted from his statistics that in the match in question, lasting over two hours, there was under 40 minutes of actual play, excluding first faults, double-faults and the time occupied in changing over, etc.

The following are the times of each rally from the time the effective service was struck until the point was decided. Where there was a double-fault it is shown thus.

In each set Perry served in the odd games. The name is the winner of the game. The times were taken with a one-tenth second watch. Each rally is indicated by a semi-colon:

WHERE COUNTY CRICKET CAN SHOW SOME IMPROVEMENT

PLAYERS WHO WASTE VALUABLE TIME: THE RULE SHOULD BE ENFORCED: STILTING BATSMEN

Writing in the Sunday Observer, "Watchman" contributes an interesting survey of county cricket features, in the course of which he writes:

This has been a splendid season—except when the politics of the game have made a sinister entrance. Golden weather has kept company with an open championship, and although some of the clubs are still living on an overdraft, crowds have been as big as they can ever be, while ninety-nine per cent. of the people who are keen on cricket are tied to office, factory, shop, or colliery for five and a half days a week.

But the sun does not always shine even in the pleasant world of bats and balls and stumps, and some of the old grievances remain.

Everyone who frequents first-class matches, for instance, knows that intervals are still illegally extended with a complete disregard of the feeling of the spectators or the prospect of a definite result. The laws decree that ten minutes only shall elapse between innings, and the official duration of a luncheon interval is forty minutes, of a tea interval a quarter of an hour. But how often are these times observed?

VALUABLE TIME LOST.

Now, forty minutes does not seem unreasonable for lunch. And surely a quarter of an hour is long enough for anyone to sip a cup of tea, nibble a piece of cake, wash his hands, or even change his shirt if he feels so inclined.

Of course, no one expects a county cricketer to become the slave of the man who has paid his shilling at the gate, although to be unpunctual after a cricket interval is as much a breach of manners as to be late for a por-

PICNIC BAY STAKES.

SWEEPSTAKE TICKETS SELLING FAST.

The demand for tickets in the Picnic Bay Sweepstake shows no sign of diminishing, the number sold up to Saturday last being 71,700. The number of through tickets also promises to constitute a record, no less than 1,400 having been taken up. It is anticipated that the 100,000 chances in the sweepstake will all be sold.

NEARLY CHAMPIONS

CRAIGENCOWER & BOWLS LEAGUE

BEAT C.S.C.C. IN FINE STYLE

The success of Craigenower "A" against Civil Service on Saturday has brought the championship of the first division of the lawn bowls league well within their grasp, and it is now odds on the Happy Valley team winning back the title Kowloon Bowling Green took from them a year ago.

Craigenower outplayed Civil Service at all points, winning on every rink. It is not likely they will drop points in either of their two outstanding matches, one of which is against their second string, and the other against the Police. Both matches will be played at Craigenower, a powerful advantage to the potential champions.

Kowloon Bowling Green have a slender chance, but it cannot now be regarded in a very serious light. They must not only beat Kowloon Docks at Hung Hom in their last game of the season, but have also to rely on at least one defeat of Craigenower if they are to have any further active interest in the championship.

SMART YACHT CLUB WIN.

The defeat of the Indian Recreation Club, champions of the second division, was not so sensational as it would have been a fortnight ago. The Indians had already made sure of the title, and could afford to lose. Nevertheless, full credit must be given to the Yacht Club in visiting Soukoonoo and being the first team this season to win there.

The Police continue to make a bold bid for the second place, and a big win against the Recreation places them on a level footing with the Bowling Green, both having won 11 out of 16 matches, with five lost. The Bowling Green enjoy a superior shots average, but it seems probable the runners-up position will not be determined until the final matches.

TAKES A REST ON MEDICAL ADVICE

PRACTICE MATCHES DURING THE WEEK-END

USEFUL PERFORMANCE BY CLUB HALF BACKS

POWERFUL S. CHINA TEAMS

(By "Veritas").

Football made a tentative re-appearance in the Colony during the week-end, when a few of the clubs turned out teams for practice and trial games. Heavy grounds, plus the normal handicaps which face all players in their initial outing, tended to keep the standard of play to a rather low level. Albeit there were several promising individual performances noted, and the players showed willingness and enthusiasm.

Except in the closing stages, when it was a case of inferior stamina, the Club put-up a useful showing against the Borderers. An entirely new feature of the civilian team was the splendid work of the half backs. Pote Hunt and Robertson immediately found their form, and Tavlin promises to be an excellent successor to Andy Duncan.

Andy, incidentally does not contemplate playing much football this season. He feels he has had a very fair share and can well afford to give way to somebody else. Whilst sympathizing with the viewpoint, I feel that before the season is half way through we shall see Andy back again. He is now one of the playing dozens of the game here, and a fine sportsman which football in Hong-kong cannot afford to lose.

TAVLIN DEVELOPING.

Tavlin's encouraging display did not come as a big surprise to those who have watched his work in the second string during the last three or four years. His ready anticipation and quick foot makes him almost as useful a forward as half back (and vice versa); his only disability as an intermediate is lack of inches and weight.

Jack Pote-Hunt gives the impression that this season will see a return to that magnificent Shanghai form, and if L. G. Robertson can reject the claims of rugby, the Club have the makings of a fine half-back-line as they have boasted since the hey-days of Jimmy Stewart.

The Borderers will undoubtedly be equally as strong this season as they were last when they swept all before them. Hems promises to be a brilliant half back in place of Davis, and Hazlewood may have some difficulty in earning a place if Chapman continues to produce such good form. All of the "old stagers" realised expectations. The defence was rocklike. Podmore and Underwood were equally as solid. Fourty and Jones were clever attackers. Mathias was out of place on the left wing, but it is pretty certain he will be awarded his rightful place on the other side of the field before the season proper starts.

KOWLOON'S NEWCOMERS.

Kowloon appear to have some useful material if their trial game is to be taken as a serious indication. The Knox brothers from Shanghai pleased and impressed supporters of the peninsula club. Elliott can be expected to improve on last year as he has now become accustomed to the weather and ground vagaries and adapted himself to the various idiosyncrasies of the game in the Colony.

Boyd, erstwhile Club player, has transferred his affections to Kowloon and should prove useful.

LEE WAI TONG DOUBTFUL.

As for the two senior South China outfits it has to be recognised without loss of time that they are going to provide some of the best football this year.

They were without the services of Lee Wai-tong (a tremendous disappointment to their supporters), and it is on the cards that Lee will not play for them during the early part of the season.

He has been advised by the doctor to rest, and until he obtains the medical O.K., will probably not attempt to satisfy the severe physical demands of football during the first stage of the season.

But Ip Pak-wah made a welcome return yesterday and formed a brilliant combination with Tay Quing. Leung In-chuan was an absentee but with Wong Moon-shan restored, playing at centre-half, the team was almost at maximum strength.

Certainly the team proved far too good for a mixed combination which went under the name of St. Joseph's. This team included Smith, Mullane, Podmore and Mathias of the Borderers. Even then they played one short and were in consequence made to look very ordinary by the speedy and scientific Chinese.

The game was no real test for South China, but it was sufficient to demonstrate them as natural successors of the Borderers for the championship this year.

Great Britain Outplay Canada By Seven to Two.

Toronto, Sept. 15. An International Women's Golf Contest between Great Britain and Canada resulted in a victory for the former by seven matches to two, three being halved.

In the foursomes, Britain won by three matches to one, while in the singles, the Mother Country scored four victories as against Canada's one. The three halved matches were all in the singles.—Reuters.

YANKEES DROP BACK IN STRUGGLE FOR PENNANT

DOUBLE HEADER SUCCESSES

New York, Sept. 16. The marked feature of to-day's programme in the major baseball leagues was that in no double header games were the honours divided.

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs twice, while St. Louis Cardinals did likewise to New York Giants. Cincinnati Reds also took the whole of the points from Boston Braves in a double header.

Chicago White Sox twice defeated Boston Red Sox, and Philadelphia Athletics administered two lickings to St. Louis Browns.

The Tigers further enhanced their pennant prospects by beating Washington Senators and securing the Yankees fall-victims to Cleveland Indians.

$21,000 GIFT TO CLUB

Football Chairman Cancels Debt

A debt of nearly $21,000 owed by Queen's Park Rangers, the Third Division football club, has been wiped out by its chairman, Mr. Charles Fielding.

The debt was owing to his late father, who was chairman for 20 years, and arose out of debentures and accrued interests on loans he had made.

"My father advanced this money to the club many years ago," said Mr. Fielding to a reporter. "I have now cancelled the debt."

"The club has not been too prosperous recently, and in the circumstances I feel that I am acting as my father would have wished."

The season before last, when Queen's Park Rangers incurred heavy expenditure in playing at the White City, there was a loss of $7,290.

INTER-SERVICES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

COMFORTABLE WIN SCORED BY THE ARMY

CAPT. CLYNTON REED DOES WELL AGAINST CDR. GLOVER

The Army won the inter-services tennis championship at the All England Club last month for the fifth year in succession and for the twelfth time since 1920. The Army gained a lead of 5-4 over the R.A.F. on Monday in the singles, and they won all their doubles on Tuesday, the final totals being: Army, 11; R.A.F., 7; R.N. and R.M., 0.

Capt. J. Clynton Reed played first string for the Army in place of Lieut. C. R. D. Tuckey, the Army champion who was representing Great Britain abroad. He gave the side a good start in beating the R.N. champion Comdr. P. F. Glover by two sets to one, driving with severity and control after an uncertain start. In his second match Clynton Reed was well beaten by the R.A.F. champion Flying Officer J. L. H. Fletcher whose powerful serving, deft volleying and the disconcerting stop-volley or drop-shot broke up the Army man's driving. Fletcher later faced Glover and made a fine recovery when 0-3 and 1-4 down in the third set to win five consecutive games for the match. Lieut. E. L. Percival scored two points for the Army without losing a set, and Lieut. H. F. C. Horne beat Comdr. Worthington (a former R.N. champion) and Flying Officer Shaw. The latter also beat Worthington, and Sqd.-Ldr. Hunter gave the R.A.F. another point (their fourth) before the singles were concluded.

HIGH CLASS DOUBLES. The nine doubles matches on Tuesday all provided a high class of lawn tennis. The Royal Navy were unfortunate in having to compete in a championship they have won three times without many of their better players who were on foreign stations, and they failed to gain a point. On the other hand the R.A.F. deserve congratulation on their improved showing: the standard of play in the Air Force is notably higher of late with such players as Fletcher (an old Cambridge Blue) and R. G. Shaw and A. E. Harbot to reinforce the senior officers. The Army proceeded to win all six doubles to increase their total points to 11, and the R.A.F. won three points from the Royal Navy.

Among the notable results was the one-sided victory of Lewis Barclay and Clynton Reed, the Army first pair, over Fletcher and Hunter, the R.A.F. first pair by 6-1, 6-1. Barclay and Horne, the Army second pair, lost six games only in two matches, and their third pair, Fraser and Hudson were equal to winning their two matches. In straight sets the three matches between the R.A.F. and the R.N. and R.M.: the Senior Service were unable to snatch a point, although Agnew and Dawson ran Fletcher and Hunter to three sets and 31 games, and Webb-Bowen and West won a set from Stowell and Harbot. English Football League Leaders Maintain Form

Leaders in all four divisions of the English football league, as well as those in the Scottish league, played true to form on Saturday, the upshot being that there were only a few isolated surprise results.

Arsenal did not convince with their odd goal in seven win at Highbury, but they secured the points which was the essential issue. Sunderland performed a far more impressive feat by visiting Aston Villa and walking off with a point.

The reward for such a daring achievement was retention of the first division leadership.

London's big match at Stamford Bridge where Pensioners received the Spurs ended according to expectations. Tottenham were easily the better team.

Brentford will take a lot of shaking off this year. To visit Blackpool and draw was a highly satisfactory performance. Nevertheless Bolton refused to be outshone and carried away both points from Notts County to retain their 100 per cent. record.

ANOTHER COVENTRY REVERSE.

Coventry followed up their partial reverse of a week ago when they were held to a draw on their own enclosure by Watford, by visiting Newport and losing, this being their first defeat of the season. It enabled Millwall and Charlton to improve their positions. Millwall scored away from home again, and Charlton simply had to beat Southend.

However, one of the best performances in this division was Reading's successful excursion to Northampton, where they pierced the local defence three times to gain their best away win of the season to date.

The first seven teams in the northern section of the Third Division scored victories, and five of them were recorded on foreign soil. It was a great day for away teams in this division, no less than six taking the full complement of points.

There are no changes in the leading positions in the first division of the Scottish League. St. Johnstone, Clyde, Rangers and Hamilton all won, but Motherwell had to be content with a draw at Aberdeen.

It was a reasonably good day for the prophets. The Telegraph forecast gave 33 correct results, while the "Beat The Book" contained 11 out of twelve correct home results.

GOLF CHAMPION

Magnificent Feat By Lawson Little

New York, Sept. 15. Playing magnificent golf, W. Lawson Little, the British Amateur Golf Champion, carried off the American Amateur title at Brookline to-day, by beating David Goldman in the final over 30 holes, by eight and seven.

Goldman was absolutely outclassed, the champion being five up on the eighteenth hole, and was right up on the twenty-seventh.—Reuters.

HONGKONG LOSE INTERPORT

FAILURES ON LAST DAY

Hongkong swimmers failed to hold the advantage they had gained in the triangular Interport contest at Shanghai on Saturday, and were finally beaten for first place by Tientsin who finished in brilliant style, taking first place in the 100 yards backstroke, 440 yards free style and 50 yards free style.

Hongkong were beaten by four points in the final tally. The big disappointment to the Colony team were defeats on the last day in the backstroke and the 440 yards free style, while the fact that they were unplaced in the diving made a further contribution to the results.

Wilfred Lawrence remained the Colony's most successful representative, but Lionel Roza-Pereira disappointed, as did Lau Po-hay.

CREW OUTSAILED BY RAINBOW

Challenger Still Very Highly Regarded

POTENTIALLY AS FAST AS THE DEFENDING YACHT

The Endeavour's first attempt in her challenge for the America's Cup was a little disappointing. Although potentially as fast as the Rainbow, the Endeavour suffered from inferior seamanship on the part of her crew, and it was only sheer bad luck which deprived the Rainbow of drawing first blood in the series.

The race ended in a fiasco, neither yacht crossing the line within the time-limit and the race was declared null and void.

Experts were satisfied that as a yacht the Endeavour is as good as the Vanderbilts' Rainbow, but that it was handled poorly. Given better conditions, however, and it is felt the Endeavour will enjoy a slight advantage. The Rainbow fully realised expectations.

Newport, R.I., Sept. 15. The weather forecast before the race was not too good, experts predicting light rain and fog, with a south-east wind.

Both boats had a final spin last night, and it is revealed that the Endeavour took in some lead ballast.

Newport became a notable town when it was virtually the capital of the whole of the United States, following the arrival of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Sopwith, interviewed by Reuters before the race, stated that he had received hundreds of letters and telegrams, and that he was delighted to think that the whole country was interested in his Endeavour.

Newport was astir early this morning, yachts, steamers, trains, and cars arriving hourly, and the scene was one of the liveliest ever witnessed in the town.

Extreme penalties were promised anyone approaching too near the yachts during to-day's and subsequent races. They will be arrested, fined $100 and forbidden to leave the harbour during the races.

Mr. Charles Havemeyer, of the Senawahaka Yacht Club, was the American observer aboard the Endeavour, while Sir Ralph Here was the British observer on board the Rainbow.

WET DAY PRESAGED.

At 8.30 this morning the weather was sunny, but shortly after the sky began to cloud over, presaging a wet day. There was no wind over the harbour, but it was learned that the sea was choppy outside.

Endeavour was the first out, being towed by a tug. This was the first time since her arrival that she did not sail under her own power.

Before sailing out Mr. Vanderbilt, Rainbow's skipper, said "Rainbow is ready, we have done everything in our power, and the rest remains with nature. I trust the weather will be kind."

Mr. Sopwith said "I regard this as any other race. I have made more preparations, perhaps, but so have the Americans. It is much easier to lose than to win, just the same as when you are finishing it is much easier to make excuses for the fishes that have got away, than it is to catch them."

It was decided that the course should be 15 miles to windward from the starting point south-east, to a point off No Man's Land, and return. The yachts cross the starting line at 4.45 p.m. British summer time. (11.45 p.m. Hongkong time).

RACE BEGINS.

Rainbow led slightly from the start, both yachts tacking to the starboard. Tom Sopwith kept the Endeavour pointed as high as possible, drawing level. After 10 minutes it appeared that the Endeavour had about two boat-lengths lead.

Both vessels were doing better than the knots. At noon Endeavour fell back slightly, and the Rainbow was now pointing higher. Both

RAINBOW'S BIG LEAD.

The question at this stage was whether Rainbow could finish within the stipulated five and a half hour time limit. Rainbow appeared a certain winner if she could cover the course within the five and a half time limit and nothing unforeseen happened. She was about a mile solemnly told that he was on no account lift the ball again. Cox is now a very useful batsman, but he is not the batsman that nature intended him to be.

Last season Washbrook, a Lancashire youth of under twenty, scored 162 against Surrey in his second match. It was essentially the innings of a natural hitter of rare endowments. The hook shot applied to balls little short of a length brought him a big proportion of his runs. But he was warned that such tactics could only succeed once in a blue moon. Like a dutiful lad he listened to grandfatherly advice, dropped his natural strokes, and proceeded to get out lb.w. with startling quickness. No one hears of him now. And the case of Washbrook is only one among many.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTS.

Endeavour Potentially as Fast As Rainbow.

Newport, Sept. 15. The New York Times says the Rainbow was handled by Vanderbilt in his usual skilful manner. Sopwith and his amateurs did not do so well.

The Journal declares that Vanderbilt caught Sopwith napping at the start and held the advantage so gained until the end. The start, said Sopwith, was the race for Vanderbilt, the windward position which he never lost.

Weather conditions made a comparison of the boats most difficult, and it is impossible to predict the results of the race.

Sopwith is given every credit for the courage to sail his own race. His ability was greater than that exhibited in many previous contests.

Other experts say that the Endeavour is potentially as fast as the Rainbow, and that any conclusions drawn from the result of the first race are most likely to be false.

Both skippers complained about being upset by aeroplanes flying overhead.

Sopwith said his amateur crew gave splendid service.

Vanderbilt admitted that the Endeavour was very fast and gave him a great race.

Cornelius Vanderbilt said, "The Endeavour showed us something." It is generally agreed that if the Endeavour gets a good breeze, she will do far better—Reuter.

There was little change in the position at 0.10 p.m., though Endeavour had made a very slight gain. Ten miles had still to be sailed before the time limit expired—and only 55 minutes left!

Rainbow downed her parachute spinnaker and ran up the smaller one in exceedingly quick time. A minute later the challenger lowered her ventilated spinnaker.

Rainbow hoisted the Genoa jib, whereupon Endeavour followed suit, but with less advantage, losing considerable ground in a slow and costly operation.

Racing against time, Rainbow drew away, under new rig, from the English vessel, which did not seem to make speed even with her sails set.

ENDEAVOUR OUTSAILED.

It was obvious at this juncture that the English hope was outsailed both ways and beaten every time in sail manipulation.

Half a mile from the finish Rainbow lost her chance when the time limit expired and "No Contest" was declared. The Endeavour was a mile from the finishing line.

In a last desperate effort Rainbow, with five minutes left, had unfurled her spinnaker to cram all speed into the last stretch. Her failure caused deep disappointment at the unsatisfactory result of the race. Hardly a cheer was raised at the finish.

On the day's sailing it was evident that the American boat was better, both windward and leeward.

The British amateur crew were out manoeuvred in their slow handling of the sails, in which department they were beaten every time by their rivals.

The result is considered to be a good augury for the Cup holders' chances.

Many critics consider that for the next race, Sopwith should change the ventilated spinnaker, which had proved so troublesome for a spinnaker resembling that used by the Rainbow.

TO MOTHERS— ADDITIONAL CALORIES

It is an actual fact that many children are well fed, but still undernourished.

Mothers can include more calories in the diet of their children by adding an extra amount of KLIM to a milk dish in addition to that which the recipe calls for.—A dish with more food value and one of creamier and more palatable texture results.

For example you can add an extra tablespoon of Klim to a cream soup, custard or omelette, thus adding 42 calories to the diet.

A famous food authority specialising in children's diets said "I wish that every mother could know about creaming vegetables with KLIM. Growing children should not be deprived of minerals so much needed by their systems."

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SYLVIA RIVERA, rich and spoiled, rules the younger set of Larcheck, fashionable New York suburb. Sylvia gives a party at the Beach Club and sets all "the crowd" except BOOTS RALPHIN of whom she is jealous.

Boots, heartbroken by the snub, accepts a belated invitation to a dinner at the club that same night given by MRS. WATERMAN, one of the town's social leaders.

HARDY WHITMORE, one of Sylvia's guests, rushes Boots off the dance floor and tries to persuade her to go sailing. She refuses and runs away, leaving her shoes. Hardy goes off in his boat and falls overboard. The entire club is aroused and he is rescued. Boots, embarrassed and ashamed, is driven home by RUSS LUND, swimming instructor.

Next morning she calls on Mrs. Waterman to apologise and, to her immense relief, finds it unnecessary. Mrs. Waterman was called away from the club that night by a death in the family.

CHAPTER VI

It took courage of a sort to face the Beach Club that morning, but Boots ran the gauntlet with head high. No matter how clear her books were with Mrs. Waterman there still remained the problem of the younger crowd's attitude toward her.

The first person she ran into, on arriving at the club, was her escort of the night before, Russ Lund, who wore his usual dark jersey swimming suit and had his woolly sweater slung over his square shoulders. But to Boots, to-day, the face that had seemed merely rather ordinary, rather lantern-jawed, appeared kind and intelligent. Indeed, she might almost have called him handsome, in a big, crude, male way. His well-knit figure was hard-muscled, burned brown. It was the body of an athlete. White teeth flashed in a big mouth, and the eyes under the craggy, irregular brows were laughing, too.

"How's things?"

Once Boots would have resented his ready assumption of friendship. There is no one on earth so essentially snobbish as a young, pretty and assured girl. But to-day she smiled at him in return, almost as an accomplice.

"Just fine! Everything came out beautifully." With a swift glance at the nearby groups she outlined the events of the morning.

"That's swell. Mighty glad it turned out so well." He waved his hand at a big, fat, blond woman in a rubber suit who came toward them from the direction of the bath-houses. "Be with you in a minute, Mrs. Sprague. The end of the pool."

The fat woman went and sat on the concrete curb, looking forlorn and, lonely, and Boots took the occasion to say hurriedly, "I won't keep you, you're busy."

"Swimming lesson," said Russ confidentially. "See you later."

As she went on down the narrow aisle Boots told herself that she must be getting a bit giddy. There was something in the quality of the big young man's smile that had stirred her oddly. Her heart was actually beating faster. Why, she couldn't be falling for him! She was still crazy about Hardy, wasn't she, in spite of what had happened last night? Why, she had dreamed about Hardy for years, ever since she was a little bit of a girl if Hardy showed her favour, her day was perfect. No, she couldn't be interested in Russ Lund. She was just grateful to him for being so decent about taking her home last night.

Patty saw her as she came down the steps. "Hi!" Patty called. Her tone had the light flick of insolence in it.

"Hi!" Boots returned, with pretended severity.

"Where you-all going?"

Boots dropped down on the sand. Patty was the only girl in the group. Patty stared at her coolly. "You kind of dropped out of the picture last night, didn't you?"

Boots said composedly, "Mrs. Waterman had a message from home about her cousin. She died last night."

"Oh, yes?" There was frank disbelief in Patty's voice.

But Laddie and John created a diversion just then, rolling over and over again on the sand, wrestling. Patty had no further opportunity for knife thrusts.

Boots had a sense of danger escaped, however. There was a look in Patty's eyes which indicated the subject was not closed. That was Patty's way. She had the relentless-ness of a steam tractor. And she never forgot. Perhaps she, too, in her secret heart, learned over Hardy's blood-dimmed looks.

Boots swam later and floated, idly staring up at the sky. Things had a way of straightening themselves out, she reflected. Just the same, she was tired of this dead-end life. It was amusing, but what did it get you? Sometimes she was so desperately restless she thought she couldn't stand it another moment. Oh, it was all right if you were like Sylvia, could keep things going every single minute of the day, with her big car, and the parties she could organize at a moment's notice—but for the average girl, with no allowance and home worries, life in Larcheck was "just poisonous."

When she came in at last the rest of the crowd had drifted away. She had a way of doing that, Boots noticed. All of them had plans for the afternoon. Some of the girls were playing bridge at Sylvia's. She had hoped Johnny would ask her to come sailing, but he hadn't. Oh, well.

She dried her hair on a rough towel and it stood fluffily around her head like a halo. It wouldn't do to go home like that. She would have to make it look better. She slipped on the waves down until they fitted her head like a cap. She was standing before the cracked, blue-framed mirror in the hall, doing just this, when she was suddenly conscious of a shadow thrown across the sunlight.

"Oh, hello!"

"Well, here's the swimming instructor."

"Drive you home?" Russ asked.

teacher again and he was staring at her and smiling.

"Drive you home . . . ?"

She couldn't refuse. It would have been too pointed and, besides, she was tired. But what did it matter? She could be merely friends with this square-shouldered, strongly built young man, couldn't she?

But she was aware, driving along, of heads being turned to stare at her and her companion. Patty's car was parked in the driveway of her house as they passed, and Patty, with one foot on the running board, was jerking a recalcitrant "bunny sock" into place. Patty opened her eyes widely. That, said Boots to herself, grimly, would have Patty something to talk about all afternoon. . . .

This time last year Boots had been invited to all the bridge teas and luncheons. But the feud between herself and Sylvia had deepened, widened. Sylvia was powerful—rich. So now Boots had fewer and fewer invitations. She threw up her head proudly. If they thought she cared!

"What's wrong?"

—She had completely forgotten the young man at her side.

"Nothing. I was just thinking."

He jerked his head back in Patty's direction. "Don't let her get your goat!"

How much did he know? Boots shrugged. "What do you mean?"

He glanced sideways at her compressed lips, at the high colour touching her cheeks.

"Oh, nothing! Only this is a small puddle, you know. I've noticed things. Some of these dolls are pretty high-hat."

She didn't know whether to frown over that or not. The sea of accented wit, with your ear. His speech was bold but she didn't mind that. She warmed at his appreciation.

"Honestly, do you think I could get by?" This was what she needed, understanding, sympathy.

"Do I think? Why, say, there're managers just waiting for girls like you. Class—and everything."

She wished her mother could hear him. Her mother, who shuddered delicately whenever the subject was mentioned. Why couldn't Boots be perfectly satisfied with things as they were? She had a good home, didn't she? She knew all the best people in town. Why couldn't she stay at home, wait until some wonderful boy asked her to marry him, and settle down right here in one of the little Spanish houses over in the Hill section?

"I love the stage," Boots said soberly. "I've always wanted to break away—do something." She thought of being a mannequin in a shop. Head high, hips swinging lazily, showing the latest Paris stork, the one who looked like French Tone, would sit negligently by with his sister, the Countess of D—. There would be an invitation that night, mysteriously delivered. Would Miss Ralston, the Countess? Dinner at the Ritz.

CONTRACT BRIDGESolution to Previous Contract Problem.By W. E. McKenney

Many a slam bid is defeated by bad distribution of trump, which cannot be foreseen in the bidding. Yet a resourceful declarer will sometimes make his contract in spite of the adverse tricks of fate.

Do not concede defeat as soon as you find an outstanding trump honour, which cannot be caught by finessing or by straight leading. There may still be a chance to avoid losing a trump trick, if you play the cards carefully.

To-day's hand illustrates how this may be done by a simple coup, a play which never fails to give the declarer a well-deserved thrill, if properly executed.

Opening lead—♦ J.

The Play

East took the first trick with the ace of diamonds, and returned a diamond. Declarer discarded a dummy's club, winning the trick with dummy's queen.

He then started to draw trump, but when West discarded a diamond on the second round, it was apparent the ten of spades could not be picked up by regular play. Declarer drew the second and third round of spades, first discarding a club, then a heart from dummy. His next lead was a small heart to dummy's ace, after which the six of diamonds was led and ruffed with the four of spades in his own hand.

He cashed the two remaining heart tricks and the ace of clubs, and then put dummy in the lead with the club king.

This left East with only the ten and seven of spades, so when another club was led from dummy, East had to ruff. Declarer's last two cards were the jack and nine of spades, so he was able to win the last two tricks, and fulfil his six spade contract.

Today's Contract Problem

South has bid one no trump. East overcalls with two spades, which South doubles. South cashes ace, king, and queen of hearts. What would your next lead be and how should East play the hand from here to make his contract? You will find that this hand contains several interesting angles.

FRAUD ATTEMPT DISCLOSED

TOO MANY REQUESTS FOR TEA MONEY

Ho Ling, 42 years of age, an unemployed, was sentenced to three months' hard labour this morning, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy, for attempting to obtain money from Mr. Louey, the manager of the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, by false pretences.

It was stated by the prosecution that defendant had approached Mr. Louey many times saying that he was the foreman of a gang of street sweepers and had asked for tea money. Mr. Louey had given defendant $5 tea money last Chinese New Year and since then defendant had been making himself a nuisance. On September 14, at 3 p.m., defendant again asked for tea money, but Mr. Louey got "fed up" and had him arrested.

Defendant had a previous conviction of two months' hard labour in 1931, for the same offence.

PAWN SHOP CLERK GIVEN WARNING

ACCEPTED STOLEN WRIST WATCH

"You had better be careful," said Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, when he warned Tang Yui, an assistant of the Chung Hing pawnshop, 33, Irving Street, Wanchai, for accepting for pawn a wrist watch, the property of Mr. G. W. Giffen, which had been stolen by Wong Muk-chuen, 34 years of age, unemployed, from No. 7 Middle Road, second floor.

The prosecution stated that Muk Chuen, defendant, had previously been employed at Middle Road as house boy, but had been dismissed about a month ago. Defendant entered the house by the servants' stairway and stole the watch, and then went to Wanchai and pawned it for $7. The watch had the owner's name engraved on the back.

Mr. Wynne-Jones sentenced defendant to six weeks' hard labour.

THE HONGKONG WHEELERS

Successful Outing Yesterday

The Hongkong Wheelers paid a visit to Castle Peak yesterday and the run proved, as was anticipated, a complete success. A large crowd assembled at the Wheelers' headquarters, and gave the Wheelers a rousing cheer as they moved off to pick up the Kowloon Section. Mr. T. Wallis, the founder of the Wheelers, officiated as Run Captain and led the party, which left Kowloon at 10 a.m.

A sensational incident occurred after the Wheelers had climbed the hill leading to Lai Chi Kok and were descending the other side at speed, when Mr. Jackson, a new acquisition to the Wheelers, misjudged a deceptive corner with the result that he crashed over the kerb and came to a standstill on the brink of a 200 ft. drop. Fortunately he sustained only slight cuts and abrasions and was able to proceed after attention. Periodical showers caused the riders discomfort, but the undoubted enthusiasm for the run overcame this. Castle Peak was reached at 12 o'clock, where refreshments were taken at the following: a much enjoyed bath. The return journey was without event and was performed in good time, viz. 80 minutes. The cycling was of a good standard throughout, despite the treacherous condition of the roads, and reflected well on the cycling for the first time in Hongkong.

It has been decided to visit Big Wave Bay next Sunday, 23rd instant. The run will commence from the Wheelers II. Q. commencing at 11.30 a.m. and Mr. W. A. Adamson will lead the party. After bathing at Big Wave Bay, the party will make a circuit of the island. Batching kit should, of course, be carried.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

In view of the tremendous interest taken in the activities of the Wheelers and the number of applications received for membership, the Committee have decided to limit the total membership of the Wheelers to 70, which leaves 20 vacancies. Any cyclists wishing to join should make early application to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. B. Fuller, Headquarters, Hongkong Wheelers, Queen's Road, who will forward full particulars.

The first General Meeting of the Club was held last week before a large attendance. In opening the meeting, the Chairman remarked on the undoubted revival of interest in cycling in the Colony recently, and expressed his opinion that the inauguration of the Hongkong

AMBITIOUS SALESMAN

SOLD HIRED CYCLE TO VILLAGER

Ngai Fat, a 21 year old unemployed, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour this morning, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy, for selling a bicycle which he hired from Chan Ming, 51, a shopkeeper of 31 Pook Wah Street, to a man named Hon Wing.

It was stated by the prosecution that Ngai Fat hired a bicycle on January 6, from Chan Ming, and went to Tsun Wan out in the New Territories, and sold it to a man named Hon Wing. On information received a detective went to see Hon Wing, and was taken by him to see the defendant who admitted that the bicycle had only been hired by him.

FAIR TO SHOWERY

Weak anticyclones are situated over N. China and the Pacific to the east of Japan. The typhoon is situated about 600 miles east of Southern Luzon, probably moving W.N.W. Local forecast:—East winds, moderate; fair to showery.

Wheelers would satisfy a much felt desire. He congratulated the Wheelers on their good fortune in having so many experienced cyclists as members, and he felt sure that the benefit of their experience would be of much value to other Wheelers. The Chairman, continuing, pointed out the usefulness of cycling either as a hobby or as a recreation, and he had no doubt that the membership of the Club would increase rapidly in the near future. Concluding, the Chairman wished the Wheelers every success.

The election of the management committee of the Wheelers resulted as follows:—

President and Hon. Secretary, Mr. B. Fuller; Vice President, Mr. J. Hodges; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. H. Tribe; Run Captains, Messrs. W. A. Adamson, R. Ellis, C. Rogers, R. Arends, Hon. Press Secretary, Mr. T. Wallis.

Rules were then framed, and a discussion as to the future policy of the Wheelers ensued.
